School board eyes changes in budget

by Arlene Surprenant
Members of the Wilmington School Committee plan to review a number of suggestions to re-allocate monies in its $12.1 million budget when they meet again next Wednesday.

Last week, committeemen re-examined 18 program areas in the 1993 budget to see if they could lessen the impact of prior reductions and make cuts more palatable. Members also accepted petitions from about 30 parents in the audience asking that the recently retired nurse at the Shawsheen School be replaced and the committee find ways to keep the system's reading program intact. Concerns were also raised on potential redistricting.

Though no decisions were reached on Wednesday, committeemen did target several areas they felt could sustain further cuts. For example, Dr. Shirley Callan suggested saving $41,754 by eliminating the In-School Suspension coordinator. The coordinator reportedly oversees an average of five students a day. Members questioned the feasibility of keeping Occupational Education courses like industrial arts and home economics given the fiscal situation. New board member Linda McMenimen asked about physical education requirements with an apparent eye toward eliminating a physical education position and was told Wilmington is slightly above the state average. She also questioned if free music lessons were still being offered to elementary students.

Members questioned their obligation in regard to the reading director's salary. Many supported the elimination of the part time mini bus driver, which could save $20,000, a figure which includes overtime pay.

The meeting was overseen by newly-elected chairman Bob Peterson. He told this paper he feels the committee will take parents' concerns about the nurse and the reading program "to heart." He expressed optimism that the new board will be able to work well together.

"I hope that our direction (in the future) will be education and only education," said Peterson.

Though he admitted past meetings often got out of hand, he said the blame should not be placed on any one member, including former chairman Aldo Cairra, who lost his seat on the board by four votes.

"Nobody was at fault. Just like a baseball team, sometimes it's easier to fire the manager," he said.

Tie clip

The Shriners were on hand last week for the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce Business Expo. Business for the clowns, of course, was clowning, and they contributed a few zany scenes to the Expo. Here they help Bob Klein of Copy Pro adjust his necktie. Wielding the scissors was "Coach," Peter Sawin. With him were "Tux," Chester Paris, and "Grumpy," Ray Tatum.

Postcard campaign lobbies for more school funds

by Arlene Surprenant
The grassroots movement begun a few weeks ago to lobby for more state funds for education is getting a boost this week from Shawsheen School parent Maria Holland and about 60 volunteers who plan to flood legislators with 5,000 postcards and petitions urging more money for their children's schools. The Local Aid for Education postcard campaign will officially end May 13, but Holland hopes the idea will catch on in other towns and parents throughout the state will put their foot down on further cuts in local aid.

"We're doing this for the kids. We hope to have a snowball effect so other towns will pick up the message. We will be heard," said a determined Holland.

Holland got involved when she learned of impending program and teacher cuts in Wilmington's school budget. She sought volunteers through WCTV, the local cable station, and had a response from approximately 60 parents with similar concerns. The parents met at the Shawsheen School Monday night to map out their strategy.

Volunteers will be stationed at supermarkets and will be visible at upcoming activities like the Senior Promenade and the soccer sign-up to urge residents to sign one of the postcards, which will be hand-carried to the State House. The postcards all carry the same message written by Holland: "It would be of great value if you could encourage the Legislature to concentrate their effort toward increasing local aid for education in support of our children. Children are the foundation of our society. If we do not take a stand, who will? We appreciate your cooperation and expect results."

According to Holland, the cards will be sent to the Governor, the Lt. Governor, the Education Committee of the Legislature, the Speaker of the House, and Wilmington's four legislators.

The campaign has the support of School Supt. Bill Fay, the school principals, Rep. James Miceli, and individual members of the school committee, said Holland. Besides the postcards, students in the upper grades will be given the option of signing a petition to the Legislature next week and students will be bringing home flyers to their parents. In lieu of the cards, residents may write their own letters or phone their representatives at the following 617 numbers: Rep. Miceli (722-2745), Rep. Marianne Brenton (722-2460), Rep. Robert Krekorian (722-2090), and Senator Robert Buell (722-1600).

For further information, residents may contact campaign organizers at either 658-9958 or 658-3447.

Housing board faces litigation

by Arlene Surprenant
Members of the Wilmington Housing Authority are facing litigation for terminating Executive Director Ella Belmore before her one-year contract expires on October 31.

In a letter to the board, Belmore's attorney Richard Whitehall maintained the board is in "violation of the signed contract and Massachusetts law" for its action against Belmore. He warned unless the board rescinds its March 9 vote to terminate the director, members could face "costly" litigation.

Whitehall said Belmore could only be terminated by written notice executed by all parties. The lawyer claimed the notice was not executed by all parties nor did it contain the signatures of officials from EOCD (Executive Office of Communities and Development). Whitehall maintained the board dismissed his client without just cause or good faith. He claimed Belmore may only be dismissed for "just cause." The attorney also questioned the validity of member Al Meegan's vote since he's currently in a conflict of interest situation. Meegan told the board he didn't feel his vote to terminate should be null and void. He charged the lawyer with mixing up two separate issues though Belmore claimed Tuesday the action to terminate was tied to a waiver request for Meegan.

WHA member Dan Gillis tried at Tuesday's meeting to rescind the March vote in order to avoid court action. He was told only the maker of the original motion can move to rescind the vote. Meegan had made the original motion. He said he was "not willing" to rescind the vote. Dot Butler was angered by the attorney's letter and implications and told the rest of the board "I don't like the letter one bit."

Both Meegan and Chairman Tom Siracusa said it should be up to the courts to decide which side was right.

"That's where it may end up. If it does, so be it," said Siracusa.

Earlier, Siracusa told this paper he had followed the advice of EOCD in the proper procedure to dismiss an executive director. He maintained his board hadn't acted improperly and he dismissed the letter as a "scare tactic."

Kidnapper still at large

Wilmington police have pursued dozens of leads, all in vain, seeking the kidnapper of a 15-year-old Wilmington youth. The youth escaped unharmed on the night of April 24, after a man identifying himself as a detective handcuffed him drove him to Tewksbury.

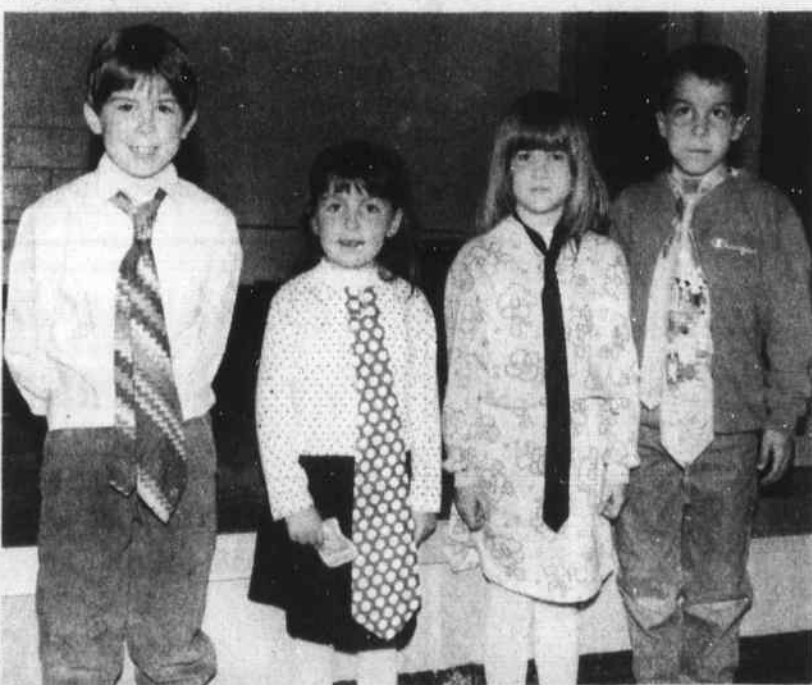

Chief of Police Bobby Stewart said that detectives are working at producing an enhanced picture of the suspect, along with improved descriptions of other elements of the crime. Police made a composite sketch shortly after the crime, but an artist is working on a picture that will show nuances that cannot be captured in a composite.

The suspect is described as being about 6 feet to 6 feet 2 inches tall, about 200 pounds, with a round face, clean-shaven. He was said to have spoken with a slight lisp.

The victim, who police have not identified, was walking with two friends on Marcia Road at 11:30 p.m. when they were approached by a man who identified himself as a security detective. He handcuffed the victim and told the other two to go home.

The victim managed to escape unharmed near Tewksbury Junior High School. He ran to an elderly housing project and pulled a fire alarm. Firefighters found him handcuffed with duct tape wrapped twice around his head, over his mouth.

Friday was tie day at the Shawsheen School. Ties ranged from dapper to zany. Showing off their cravats were Jonathan Robarge, Jennifer Fone, Dean Gray and Brent Holloway. Where are the Shriners clowns when you need them?

Conflict of interest issue tabled

by Arlene Surprenant
Following some confusion over the best way to resolve a conflict of interest of one member of the Wilmington Housing Authority, board members went along with their chairman's recommendation to table the issue until next month's meeting.

Chairman Tom Siracusa told the board he needed time to contact officials from HUD (Housing and Urban Development) and clarify the two options HUD officials have proposed to remove Al Meegan from a conflict of interest situation. Meegan is the landlord of a Section Eight rental home in Wilmington which is administered by the authority. Meegan had been a landlord prior to the vote of both

TMHS Students of the Month

For the month of April, Tewksbury Memorial High School has named five students of the month in the category "Determination." They are seniors Amy and Julie Beauregard, junior Donald Carbonneau, sophomore Christine Hooper, and freshman Scott Abbott.

Seniors Amy and Julie Beauregard have attained tremendous success in every area of life. They have suffered through the loss of their father due to cancer and are dealing with a serious illness afflicting their mother. Amy and Julie have dealt with these hard times and have become positive leaders. After playing volleyball for four years, Amy has gained all-star status and Julie has been named all-conference. Both Amy and Julie have had very successful basketball careers. Amy reached all-star and all-conference status and is the first girl to score 1000 points while at TMHS. Both girls have reached the state competition level in track. They have had the determination to get on with their lives and achieve so very much!

Junior Donald Carbonneau is a conscientious student who maintains a very good academic record despite the tremendous adversity which he has gone through. In his sophomore year, Donald was diagnosed with Hodgkins disease. In the last two years he has gone through several operations as well as radiation and chemotherapy. Donald has never complained or questioned why he is sick. He has never asked for any special consideration. Rather, he only expressed a feeling of gratitude to others who have supported him in his time of need.

He has played baseball since a very young age, but has been unable to play for the high school team the last two years. He has chosen to stay active and works for the baseball team in other ways. His attendance rate at school is very high and Donald has maintained good grades. Donald is a survivor and deserves a great deal of recognition for his strength of character.

Sophomore Christine Hooper is a person who is determined to get and give the most out of her life. In addition to maintaining a good academic record, she participates in nearly every facet of school and community life. She has participated in all charitable drives at TMHS including the walk for hunger, raising money for Project Bread. Christine volunteers every week at the Tewksbury Blaire House Nursing facility through the "Adopt a Grandparent" program developed by the Tewksbury Student Council. She is actively involved in St. William's Parish. She practiced and rehearsed for months as a member of the cast of the school production "Bye, Bye Birdie." As a member of the track team through every season, the coaches have seen exceptional and drastic improvements in her performance.

Freshman Scott Abbott was nominated and selected because of his determination in improving himself. Scott is a good academic student and plays golf. At the beginning of the year, he was a fair student showing a fair amount of effort toward his studies. At Thanksgiving, Scott and his family visited relatives in China. When he returned, Scott seemed to have a new attitude about life. This attitude was reflected in every area of his studies and has continued throughout the year. In almost every subject, Scott has improved his academic achievement by two letter grades! According to his teachers, he has been doing excellent work.

NEW LIFE IN OLD TAX BREAKS

Congress giveth and Congress taketh away - but this year they taketh a little less than expected. A number of tax breaks that were supposed to expire at the end of 1991 have been extended through this June. Among them are these favorites:

•The gain you get when you give tangible personal property, including works of art, is not subject to the Alternative Minimum Tax.

•Your employer can provide up to $5,250 of education costs without it being included in your taxable income.

•If your employer provides group legal services, the first $70 in benefits is not taxable income.

•If you're self employed, you may continue to deduct 25 percent of health insurance costs.

Other extensions are more business oriented, covering extensions of tax credits for low income housing, for hiring certain disadvantaged workers, for clinical testing of "orphan" drugs and other esoterica.

Will you benefit from the extensions? Talk it over with us at

Mailbox spruce-up requested

The U.S. Postal Service is asking customers to extend "spring cleaning" outside their door and look closely for ways to improve the appearance and security of their mail receptacles during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 18-23, 1992.

Each year, the Postal Service designates this time to call customer attention to the need for providing mailboxes that are:

Designed to protect the mail from weather; neat in appearance; conveniently located; and safe to use.

Mailboxes that meet these four important requirements contribute to more efficient mail delivery, collection and improved service to the entire mail route.

Customers should contact their local post office for more information on approved mailbox styles, suggested locations for placement, as well as other requirements.

Sewer survey in the mail

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington residents can expect to receive a questionnaire with their water bills this week on their preference for funding future sewer projects.

The questionnaire was distributed at the annual town meeting but only 73 were returned to the Sewer Financing Advisory Board. At their meeting Monday night, members expressed disappointment with the small sampling and decided to try to get more input from homeowners. Members also reviewed the results of the survey and made plans to hold a public hearing in September to inform residents on funding options and to receive feedback.

Of the 73 respondents, 39 favored sewerage in Wilmington in the next 15 to 20 years, 32 opposed sewers, and two were unsure of the best course of action. While 34 respondents felt sewers are an asset to the town and neighborhoods, 26 felt they were not. When asked their funding preference, 30 people favored a combination of betterments, tax rate, and water and sewer rates to pay for future sewer projects. Fifteen residents favored only the betterment method, 10 favored taking the cost out of the tax rate, which is deductible, while six people favored taking the cost out of the water and sewer rates, which are not deductible.

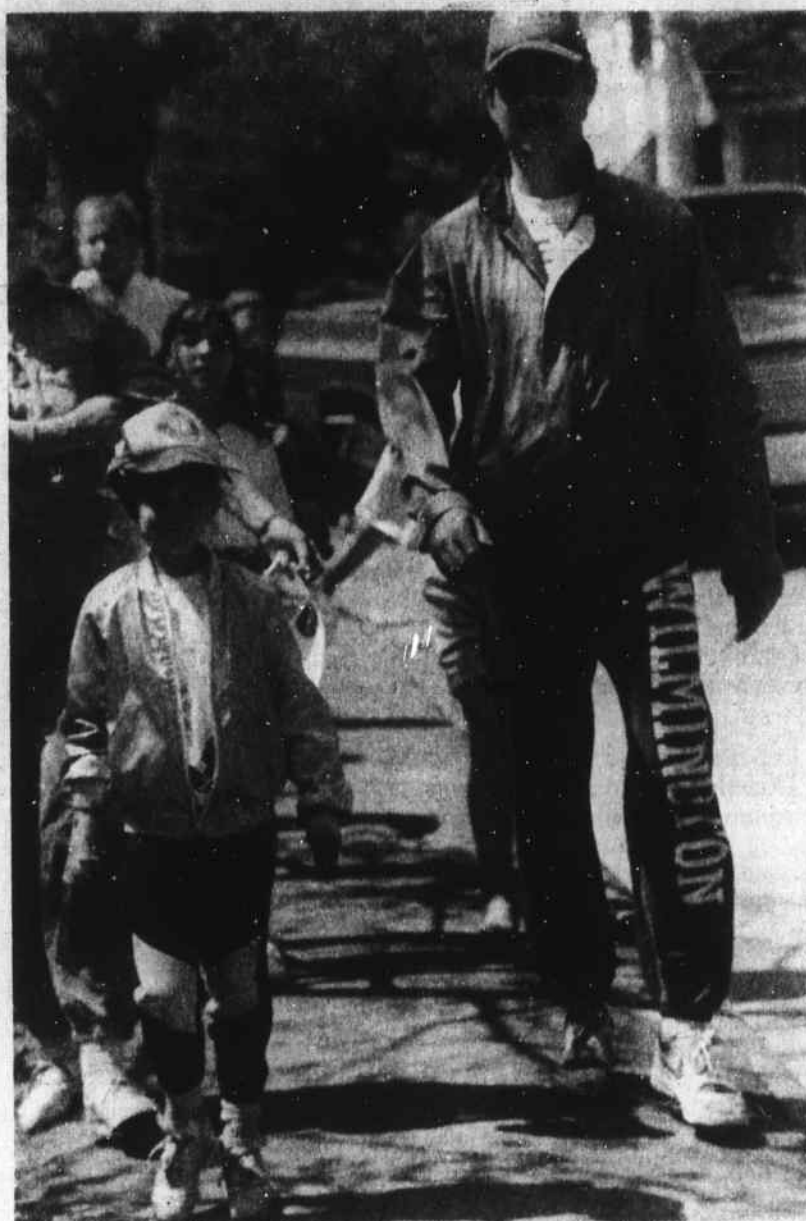

During the meeting, members felt a lot of the negative feelings about sewers could be traced to the rising rates being charged by the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA). Town Accountant Mike Morris noted "the MWRA is the problem" and said the town was, in effect, being charged for "past sins." Homeowner Alan Rowe agreed saying "we can't let the MWRA march us off the cliff."

Chairman George Allan tried to get a consensus from his board on the direction they should be taking. He said one funding option would be to use betterments, or direct charges to homeowners whose property would be bettered by the sewer line, to pay for lateral lines and take the cost of pumping stations and interceptors out of the tax rate. Another alternative, he said, would be to change the betterment formula and put betterments on a "not to exceed" basis.

Arthur Spear said, no matter how the money was appropriated, "it will still come out of your hide." He cautioned that industries would move away if too much of a burden is placed on them.

Though no decision on the best method of financing was reached, members did agree with Paul Radochia and Paul Palizzolo that both the board and the public needed more information on the potential impact of various betterment formulas. The board plans to meet June 1 to review various scenarios, which will then be presented at a public hearing in the fall.

A helping hand for carpal tunnel victims

A new surgical procedure is bringing relief to many people who suffer from carpal tunnel syndrome. The carpal nerve travels from the wrist to the center of the palm, and spreads outward toward both the thumb and the little finger. When the canal or tunnel through which the carpal nerve travels becomes compressed, people experience sensory problems, such as tingling, burning, numbness or even muscular problems, such as weakness or the inability to pick up objects.

The new procedure, called an Endoscopic Carpal Tunnel Release has been developed within the last few years. Based on the same idea as the more widely known and practiced arthroscopy, endoscopy involves guiding a metal sheathed, penlike scope into the canal to release the ligament that is compressing the carpal nerve. Among its benefits are that it requires less anesthesia, creates less scarring and reduces recuperative time.

One of the doctors in the area who performs endoscopies is Barry Dorn, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon at Winchester Hospital. "Endoscopy is a valuable addition to our choices for bringing relief to people with carpal tunnel syndrome," he says. "We can try non-surgical methods, but when surgery is essential, we now have two alternatives."

The most common surgical approach remains the open release of the ligament in which an incision is made in the palm, the ligament is exposed and released. With endoscopy, a tiny incision is made in the wrist and the endoscope, which contains a tiny fiber optic telescope, is guided under the ligament. The surgeon and assistant use a TV monitor to watch their actions since they are cutting under the ligament and could not otherwise see what they were doing. Another tiny incision in the palm is made for the endoscope to exit. Apart from these two small incisions, the exterior of the hand is not cut.

According to Dr. Dorn, if you are experiencing any of the symptoms associated with carpal tunnel syndrome, it's worth talking to your doctor. "If the problem is treated early, when there's only a sensory deficit such as the numbness, burning or tingling, most people improve completely," he says. "However, if the nerve stays compressed for a long time and the muscles become involved, full use of the hand may not come back."

When you have been diagnosed as having carpal tunnel syndrome that will require surgery, how do you know if you are a good candidate for endoscopy? Dr. Dorn urges patients to discuss the risks and benefits of the two options in detail with their doctors. "For example, patients who would be suited for endoscopy are people with good wrist and finger motion. Some people won't qualify," he explains.

He also cautions that while there are many benefits to endoscopy, there are drawbacks that people should evaluate with their doctors. "No matter how expertly the endoscopy is performed, there is a greater risk of damaging one of the other nerves in the wrist or hand because the endoscope has to go through some normal tissue to get to the ligament," says Dr. Dorn.

Endoscopy offers another alternative to more extensive surgical approaches to this growing problem. However, Dr. Dorn emphasizes that it's not a procedure designed for everyone.

Town manager pursues efficiency

During the past few months Wilmington Town Manager Mike Caira has been "laying down the law" to town employees in several departments. He seeks to have more efficiency and at less cost.

One department out of several is the Water and Sewer Commissioners. Mike has had several meetings, the last being in early April. It was an "executive meeting" at which, it seems, he spoke his mind openly on several subjects.

In answer to questions, Mike told the Town Crier that he seeks "efficiency and economy." "The commissioners" he says, "should be able to run that department on one meeting a month."

Like many officials in Wilmington the Water & Sewer Commissioners are unpaid.

The "drainlayers" situation is one that he may or may not have discussed. Any home owner who wants to have the house sewer connected to the town sewer must have that done by a "licensed" drainlayer. There is a list of drainlayers in the town hall, available to anyone on demand. At this time there are about 25 names on that list, of which five are local residents.

Outdoor food stand draws fire

by Arlene Surprenant
A local convenience store owner was warned to stop selling fresh fruit and vegetables outside his establishment until he checks zoning regulations and submits a plan showing how he will arrange the produce and protect it from unsanitary conditions.

Mike Castellano, owner of Food Mart on Shawsheen Avenue, received a letter from Health Director Greg Erickson almost two weeks ago ordering him to cease and desist the sale of produce outside his store. Erickson said such activity violates the state's food establishment regulations and is punishable by a $50 fine for each occurrence.

Members of the board of health Monday told Castellano the food needs to be "adequately protected." Usually this takes the form of individual wrapping, said Chairman Jim Ficociello. The board also pointed out the owner's permit only allows for the sale of food inside the store.

Castellano argued that the food is on an outside food stand and such stands are evident "everywhere in the state." Before pursuing the matter further, both Erickson and Ficociello advised the owner to clear the idea of a food stand with the Building Inspector in case it violates a zoning bylaw.

Wilmington offers summer day care

The Wilmington Public School System is offering a summer day care program. It will be held at Camp Forty Acres, which is located on Andover Street in Wilmington.

Parents must transport their children to and from the summer program which will be held for six weeks beginning Monday, June 22. It will end Friday, July 31, 1992. The daily hours are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and it is available for school age children in grades K through five.

The objective of this program is to provide creative supervision while meeting the needs of children during the hours that parental care is not available. Program activities are designed to meet the developmental needs of children. Some of the activities will include hiking, nature studies, outdoor/indoor games, and theme related arts and crafts. Parents must provide a lunch and drink for their children.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

There's nothing like a hair splitting issue to raise a larger issue. Case in point, Jay Kelley's back-firing letter to the editor last week defending a political donation from Town Clerk Liz Carey and Town Treasurer Warren Carey. Kelley condemned the media spotlight on his long-time vote counting comrade, under the principal guise that no donation was received from Her but just from Him, joint checking account or not.

The Town Crier presented the truth and the facts as delineated by Kelley's campaign treasurer under the pains and penalties of perjury. We also delivered a message in the process, however sarcastically couched, now about to be elaborated on seriously.

Liz Carey's political activities are ethically wrong. Counting votes and playing politics is a dangerous dichotomy, a mixture as potent as water and electricity. It clearly raises eyebrows and speculation, if not the scrutiny of the Massachusetts Ethics Commission. Section 23 of Chapter 268A of the General Laws prohibits public employees from acting in a manner which would cause a reasonable person to believe that the public employee would act with bias in his or her official capacity.

The town clerk should not be an active participant in the campaigns, the joint fates of which depend on absolute and unquestionable standards. These standards must be built on a foundation which is free from the cracks and crevices of conflict of interest.

The Town Crier contacted town clerks in other communities. Though none wished to be named, all of the election chiefs were adamantly opposed to participation in a local campaign coming under their respective jurisdictions.

"I wouldn't do it," said Phil Campbell, the Easthampton Town Clerk and President of the Massachusetts Town Clerks Association. Campbell said he believed clerks had the right to make donations, but that the majority of his membership would probably oppose the practice. "I wouldn't encourage giving money if you're a town clerk because of the perception problem," said Campbell, a town clerk since 1974 and the association president since 1990.

If there is another issue here it's the disturbing fact that whenever the clerk is ethically censured by the media there's a subsequent excuse that someone else is to blame. When Liz Carey's name appeared in the advertisements of Tom Conlon it was called a mistake only after media scrutiny. Now, when the entrenched clerk's name appears as one of the single largest contributors to a selectman candidate, it's not her part of the joint checking account but her husband's.

The simple truth is that ethics requires responsibility to oneself and not attributing blame to others. With ethics, the buck always stops right here.

If there is one point of blame to be delegated it is that Selectman Jay Kelley should never have taken a check from two town employees. Just as major candidates have refused PAC money to ease the concerns of voters, Selectman Kelley and his colleagues, in this year of campaign finance reform, would be better leaders if they declined soliciting and/or accepting funds from municipal workers.

We speak directly this week to the conscience and probity of Liz Carey. We ask, for the sake of ethical standards, that you declare what the policy of your office shall be regarding political activities.

The quiet chatter of Tewksbury should finally be put to print. You either campaign or you count votes. Not both.

Briefly in Politics . . . In Wilmington

Former Selectman Mike McCoy, just defeated again at the polls, reported campaign expenditures before the election exceeding $4,000. McCoy spent $4,292.47, all from his personal funds, according to the finance report due eight days prior to the election, with a final report of fundraising and spending due later this month. Coming second in spending in the selectmens race was Tom Siracusa at $1,657.00. Top vote getter Gerry Duggan had spent $1,350.73, Tony Capuano $942.74 and Chet Bruce $766.81. Elmer Parker did not file a report.

On the school committee side Brad Jackson's spending one week out from the election peaked at $1,184.78. Aldo Cairra had spent $346.00, John DeMarco $440.07, Linda McMenimen $52.00, Jim Demos a paltry $27.20 and Andrea Paglia reported no receipts or expenditures.

Spending for the last week of the campaign would not be reflected in reports now available but will be detailed in the final report, due on the thirtieth day post election.

While State Representatives Rob Krekorian (R) and James Robert Miceli (D) will get free rides to re-election this year, Rep. Marianne Brenton (R), who represents Wilmington's Precinct Three, has four Burlington Democrats fighting for the chance to take her on in the general election. They are Ted Ferguson, Bob Hogan, Virginia Mooney and Jack Ferran. The would-be challengers face tough odds against Brenton, credited with high visibility in the district.

Brenton has a broad grass-roots organization and is already being mentioned by state Republican officials as a possible contender for state-wide office in 1994, possibly secretary of state.

Known for her close relationship with Governor William F. Weld, Brenton played a key role in formulating the school choice legislation on Beacon Hill and stands for re-election in a year forecasted positively for pro-choice women candidates.

File this under a great deal in bad times. Town Counsel Alan Altman's W-2's for Tax Year 1991, obtained by the Town Crier, show $71,412.07 in total earnings. That includes Altman's base salary and $11,062.50 for legal services rendered the school department. Altman's salary, a long standing issue of local curiosity, is broken down into three parts. Today, Altman earns $4,583.33 a month from the town meeting appropriation, $833.33 a month from the water department account and $75.00 per hour as needed for the school system. Meanwhile, speculation increases that Altman is nearing a decision on a retirement date sometime next year.

Speaking of lawyers, when was the last time Wilmington had attorneys chairing the two major town boards? Just as Attorney Bob Peterson took the school committee gavel, Attorney Mark Haldane seems poised to take the reigns at the board of selectmen. This would be the second gavel for Haldane, who chairs the Board of Review at the Department of Employment and Training. Haldane was appointed to that administrative judge position by Governor Weld in May of last year.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:
Seventeen thousand bucks!! Are you kidding? For a punch in the nose!

No, I don't approve of what Mike McCoy did to Mr. Cain, and yes, I believe it cost him the election, I think everyone has a right to know the reason for the 17,000 award to Mr. Cain with every cent explained in writing.

I think Mike McCoy's political career ended that night in 1989.

Dear Larz:

More than ever, the children in our communities need the attention, caring and concern of the adults around them. Today's childhood is not the same as in the past. Growing up in today's world children are confronted with many different challenges in their schooling, their family life and their peer relationships. I am writing to acknowledge and say thanks to the Camp Fire Boys and Girls leaders in Tewksbury who have made the children of this community their priority by sharing their personal time, interest, homes and hearts with them.

Wednesday, April 29, was Camp Fire Volunteer Recognition Day and the community was invited to join in saying thanks to the following leaders in Tewksbury for caring about our children year round. Camp Fire's motto is "give service." Through participation in Camp Fire clubs, boys and girls stay connected and involved with their community and begin the process of becoming the adult volunteers of tomorrow. Each year Camp Fire club members from kindergartners through high schoolers contribute hundreds of hours of service from cleanups to food drives to advocacy.

Camp Fire Boys and Girls and community high fives go to:

Diane Malley-Parcella, Monica McBrine, Lillian McNeil, Patricia Meunier, Katherine Morris, Deborah Mulvanity, Linda Poirier, Donna Power, Elizabeth Robinson, Mary Smith, Susan Southard, Dawn Sullivan, Patricia Takach, Renee Varney, Cecile Vincent.

These individuals deserve our recognition and thanks for their commitment to Tewksbury's greatest natural resource - its children!

Sincerely,
Cynthia A. Beaudoin
Executive Director
Council for Greater Boston Camp Fire

Dear Larz:

Parents and staff should be proud of the WHS Class of '93, and their guests at their junior prom, which was held Friday evening, May 1 at the Hillview Country Club. It was a beautiful evening and the students had a wonderful time.

Special credit must be given to the class officers: Lee Iannacchino, president; Joe Scifo, vice president; Becky Bouchie, secretary; Jessica Harrison, treasurer and the whole prom committee.

It was a night to remember. Truly, the Class of 1993 is a class with class! I was very proud of you!!

Sincerely,
James M. Gillis, Advisor
Class of 1993, WHS

Dear Larz:

Every month I paid my electric bill before the due date in order to get the discount for early payment.

However - for the last three months, the bill following each early payment does not reflect the early payment. Instead, it shows the amount of discount as being in arrears and overdue.

The first month, I complained in person at the Reading Light Company office and was assured that the computer error would be corrected.

The second month, I again complained in person at the Reading Light Company office and was again assured that it wouldn't happen again.

Now, the third month (you guessed it!) it HAS happened again. I am thoroughly annoyed and angry. If residents fail to read the bottom of their bill very carefully, they may be unwittingly paying charges which they do not owe.

My bill is completely paid to date; I would really like this mess straightened out. Is it happening to anyone else?

Sincerely,
Ann Ethier
Woburn Street

Dear Larz:

Children can be seen bicycling bareheaded, individually, and in groups, occasionally carrying a friend, in practically every community throughout the Commonwealth. These practices have been solidly established and enjoyed for generations.

Legislation, at a public hearing, in the State House, on April 2, has been introduced, which would require bicyclists and passengers under age 12, to wear helmets. It would ban all passengers from being carried in such ways as on the top tube, the saddle itself, and, on plain rear carriers.

This law would mean that parents and guardians would have to pay for the specified equipment because no state funding would be provided. Violation would result in $20 fines. Few, it seems, would find wearing helmets to be agreeable. A likely harmful effect is that this would lead to tensions building within families between rebellious children and enforcement obligations being assumed, involuntarily, by parents and guardians.

Nelson Pena, in Bicycling, May, '92, reports on findings of helmet laws in Australia, which pioneered in such laws, in the 1980s. Pena states that emergency room head injuries are down 50 percent, but, so also are all other non-head injuries. In order for the laws' objectives to have succeeded, the head injury reduction rate should have been substantially more than the non-heads. However, since they are equivalent, this means the laws have failed. It further indicates that people deserted bicycling in droves, and, sent the entire industry into a recession.

This bill is moving rapidly through the legislature. Please relate your experiences/viewpoints, in opposition to S.1037, by writing or phoning your legislators. The address is: State House, Boston, Ma. 02133. The area code and exchange are (617) 722. The room numbers and last four digits of Wilmington's legislators are: Senator Robert C. Buell (Room 321, tel. 1600); Representatives: Marianne W. Brenton (Room 443, tel. 2460), James R. Miceli (Room 237, tel. 2745), and Robert C. Krekorian (Room 540, tel. 2090).

A healthy investment

People with pets should take note of a rabies epidemic which has been moving northward during recent years. Last year, more than 200 cases were reported in Connecticut animals, and a rabid raccoon was recently killed in New Hampshire.

While humans are not at great risk from wild animals with rabies, pet owners should realize that the potential exists for their animals to come in contact with animals. And that puts humans at risk.

According to the Mass Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA), raccoons, skunks, foxes and bats are the animals most likely to have rabies. The MSPCA recommends that people avoid contact with these species, but does not recommend indiscriminate removal or killing of susceptible animals. Trapping would be ineffective, due to the erratic behavior of infected animals. Birds, snakes, turtles, lizards, fish and insects do not contract rabies.

Rabies is a virus which normally transmits via a bite or a scratch from an infected animal, or by contact with that animal's bodily fluid, especially saliva, with your mouth, eyes, nose, or broken skin.

Protection for humans is extremely critical. If untreated, rabies is fatal. For people bitten by known or suspected rabid animals, five shots over a four-week period will prevent the disease from developing. But the shots must be started soon after the bite occurs or they won't work.

Pet owners should protect their dogs or cats by having them inoculated. This also gives protection to the humans who come in contact with that pet.

Shots for your pet are available from a veterinarian. But probably the best bargain of the year will be available on Saturday, May 16 at the Wilmington DPW garage. The town's annual rabies clinic will provide shots for both cats and dogs for a fee of $5.00.

Dogs should be on a leash, and cats should be in a cat carrier.

House endorses more funds for Boston Harbor

The Massachusetts House of Representatives has adopted a resolution to fully endorse congressional legislation aimed at bringing more federal dollars into the Boston Harbor Cleanup Project. Representative Miceli was among those supporters to call for this measure to aid in the relief for Massachusetts Water Resource Authority ratepayers.

Federal legislation has been sponsored by Senators Kerry and Kennedy and Congressman Markey. To aid their efforts, Rep. Miceli has requested that the heavy financial burden on the 60 MWRA communities be eased dramatically.

Rep. Miceli stated that the legislature will continue to seek avenues for relief regarding this issue.

Salem and Lowell Railroad built for shipping cotton

by Capt. Larz Neilson
The Salem and Lowell Railroad operated from 1851 to 1923. Few people in the towns of North Reading, Wilmington and Tewksbury today know that there ever was such a railroad in their town. The last train ran from Lowell to Salem in June 1923. This writer, by happenstance, happened to be in North Wilmington, at Brown's Crossing, to see that train go eastward, the conductor standing alone on the rear platform. Lowell, on the Merrimack River, was a cotton manufacturing town from about 1820 for about 100 years. Cotton, grown in the southland of the US, was shipped to Boston and then sent to Lowell on the old Middlesex Canal, and then later, starting about 1823, on the Boston and Lowell Railroad. A dozen years or so before the Civil War the merchants of Salem were talking about construction of a railroad between their town and Lowell. Lowell was one of the busiest communities in the United States. Water power was the reason, water power from the Merrimack River.

Salem, which had been a seaport four years longer than had Boston, could only look at all the money being made by the Boston people, transshipping cotton. If only Salem had built a railroad. Finally, about 1847, the Salem people decided on a railroad to Lowell. Why should the people of Boston have all that business? The Salem & Lowell Railroad thus became a reality, instead of a vague hope.

One of the persons who explored the route for the Salem & Lowell was Asa Sheldon of Wilmington, a man who had been constructing railroads ever since the Boston & Lowell.

Whether or not Asa had a part in the construction of the Salem & Lowell is a question, but he did explore along the Ipswich River to find the best route.

Asa tells the story in his book, "Wilmington Farmer," copies of which are in Wilmington Public Library.

His book is one of the best, in the United States for what may be called "local reading lore". Some ladies, believe to have been members of the Wilmington Women's Club, in 1959 had a reprint made of Asa's book. They termed themselves Friends of the Wilmington Public Library.

Want to know about hop growing? Asa did it, and transported Wilmington hops to New York and Philadelphia. He tells the tale.

Want to catch a wild goose, by hand?

Asa tells how to do it. All the reader has to do is to find the wild goose first.

Want to operate an old fashioned water powered saw mill?

Asa did it, at what was later Brown's Mill, on Salem Street in Wilmington. He bought that mill from Major Aaron Pearson, and made a profit until one day, Nov. 13, 1809, when a load of timbers fell on him, and broke his leg.

The physician who took care of Asa was Frank Kittredge of Wilmington, member of a well known Tewksbury family. Asa's story of how Dr. Kittredge took care of him is well worth reading.

Asa was hired, about 1848 to help "layout" the Salem & Lowell. Part of his work was to look for a railroad track site in the area of the Hundred Acre Meadow.

The Hundred Acre Meadow is an immense area where the Ipswich River flows through Wilmington, North Reading and Reading. Some would call it a "swamp."

Asa drove his horse and vehicle out into the Hundred Acre Meadow in the month of March. It was foggy, and Asa drove further north than he was planning.

The ice broke. The vehicle and horse were in the river, but Asa was, fortunately, on top of the ice.

The nearest farmhouse was over a mile away, the Gowing farm on Park Street in Wilmington, now the home of the Andersen family.

Asa wrote that he "halloed long and loud."

Fortunately the noise woke up Jonathan Gowing, the 49 year old Gowing who then owned the farm. Jonathan rescued Asa.

No, the Salem & Lowell was not constructed where Asa fell through the ice. It was further north, and the old railroad bed can still be traced by those who look for it.

When Wilmington started its water department in 1926, the pumping station was built at Brown's Crossing, on land that had been owned by Maria Hathaway.

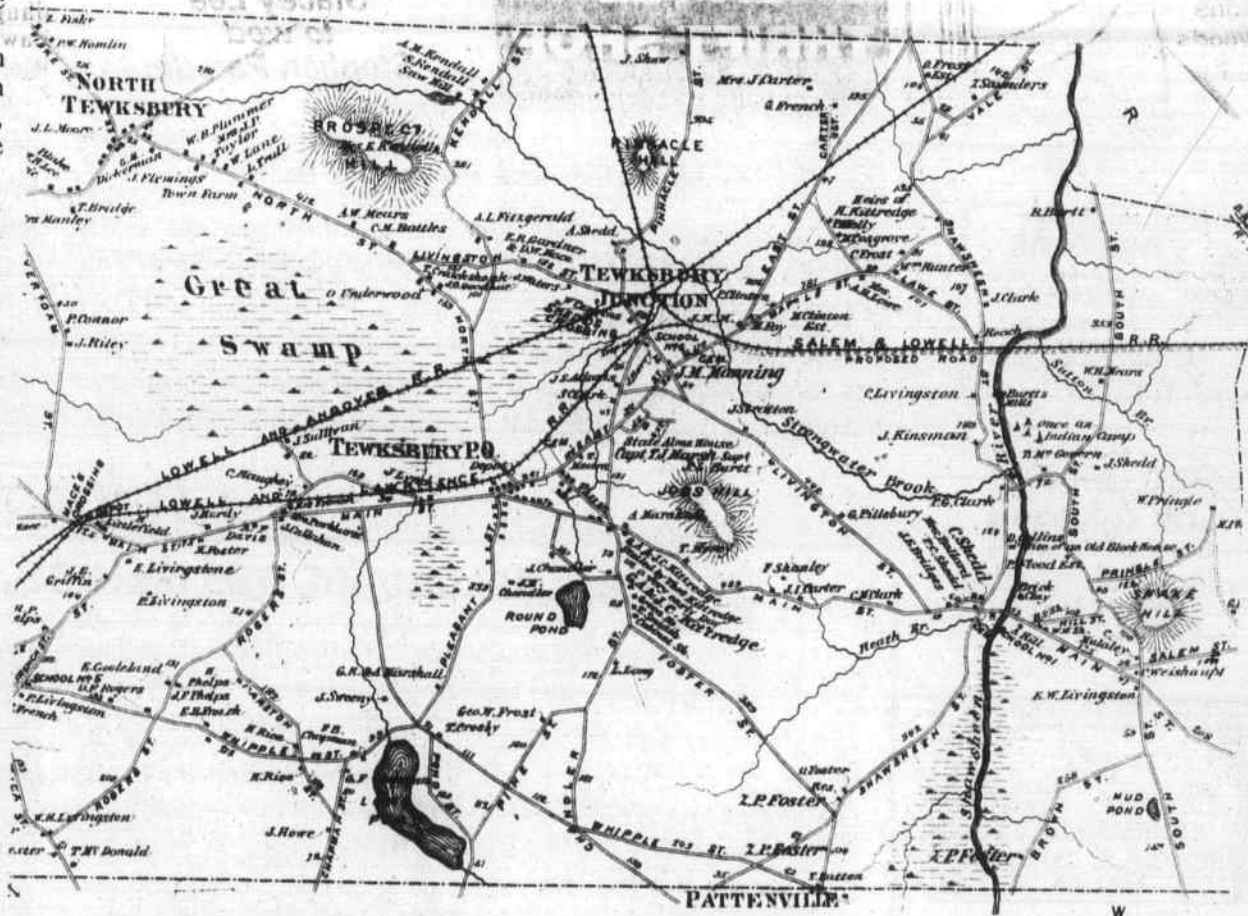

She was a descendant of Dr. Silas Brown, a physician, born in Tewksbury. He purchased the Joshua Harnden home and many acres of land about 1816. Wilmington and Tewksbury has a lot of lore about Dr. Silas and his family.

His father, for instance, was the Captain of the Tewksbury Trained Band (Militia) on Concord Day, the beginning of the American Revolution. His son was the first physician of the Tewksbury Alms House, now the Tewksbury Hospital.

Silas lived for about half a century in the Harnden Tavern. One of the traditions of that building is how he sat at the upstairs window, overlooking Salem Street, and wrote letters to his son who was serving in the Union Army, under General McLellan, as a physician, during the Civil War.

An 1875 map of Tewksbury shows a maze of railroad tracks at Tewksbury Junction, which was located just north of the intersection of Livingston and East streets. The map is from the J.B. Beers Atlas of Middlesex County.

The remains of the bridge which carried the Salem and Lowell Railroad across the Shawheen River in East Tewksbury is still in pretty good shape. The steel is solid, and the stones are secure, although a few of them are scattered. Photo is looking toward Shawheen Street.

Remnants of the railroad

Remnants of the Salem and Lowell Railroad can be seen today. In North Wilmington, the railroad bed crosses Salem Street, Route 62, near Martin's Brook. On the south side of the road, it crosses through yard of Shea Concrete and leads to Wilmington's Salem Street pumping station. North of Salem Street, it crosses Martin's Brook, and runs behind the Regional Health Center. The crossing at Woburn Street is known as Brown's Crossing. The roadbed cuts diagonally across the corner of Woburn and Andover streets, and becomes Ainsworth Road, which dead-ends at the Route 93-125 off ramp.

The construction of Route 93 in the 1950's destroyed some of the remains of the railroad. The railroad crossed Ballardvale Street under a bridge that was next to the Evans farmhouse. A small portion of the approach to that bridge still stands at the end of Old Ballardvale Street just north of Route 125.

Westerly of Route 93, the railroad bed crosses the Portland Division (now called the Haverhill line) of the Boston and Maine about 100 yards from Route 93.

The train station there was called Wilmington Junction. There were a half-dozen houses there as well. One couple who lived there were Arthur and Ethel Williams, who later lived at the corner of Andover Street and Ainsworth Road. Arthur worked on the Salem and Lowell Railroad, and later worked for the Wilmington Water Department.

Beyond Wilmington Junction, the railroad entered Tewksbury, passing near the area now occupied by the controversial Rocco landfill.

It crossed the Shawheen River about 100 yards downstream from Bridge Street, and then crossed Shawheen Street at Burr's Crossing, near Lowe Street. Tom Sawyer, now living in Wilmington, used to have a farm there.

The railroad crossed East Street at Strongwater Brook. Between East and Livingston streets was Tewksbury Junction, where the railroad joined with the Lowell and Lawrence Railroad, and crossed the Lowell and Andover Railroad. The tracks of the latter are still an active railroad line, part of the Boston and Maine.

Supporting the Childhood Hunger Relief Act

Ready for season

Wilmington's Little League A's are ready for their season after a brisk walk in the annual Little League parade Sunday. For a complete wrapup of Wilmington Little League action see this week's sports section.

Representative Miceli and his House colleagues have been working diligently with child advocates throughout Massachusetts in supporting the Childhood Hunger Relief Act.

This bill was developed in response to the growing epidemic of childhood hunger throughout the state which was confirmed by a study entitled: Children Are Hungry in Massachusetts. The study concluded that hunger is a reality for one in every four of the state's children and some 200,000 children under age 12 are hungry or at risk of being hungry. Also clearly stated was the fact that hungry children are more likely to have health and school related problems.

To address this terrible issue, the Child Hunger Relief Act would:

- *Ensure that needy children and families eligible for the school breakfast, summer food service, WIC program (special supplemental food program for women, infants and children) and food stamp programs receive the critical food provided by these programs.

- *Bring additional federal dollars to Massachusetts: Last year federal food programs brought $300 million into the state. If outreach efforts for food stamps alone increased participation by just five percent, federal dollars to Massachusetts would increase by $10 million.

- *Reduce Medicaid costs: A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study found that for every dollar spent in prenatal WIC, $1.92 to $4.14 were saved in Medicaid costs.

- *Improve school performance: A 1987 Lawrence, MA school breakfast study documents that children who participated in the school breakfast program had reduced absenteeism and tardiness and improved test scores.

Representative Miceli states, "With only two thirds of the eligible families in Massachusetts receiving food stamps and only half of the eligible families receiving WIC benefits, I don't see how we would justify not enacting this legislation."

Joe and Dave with the tools of the trade

Shopping locally can really save you more than just time. It will save you money! Many people don't realize that going out to a big "discount" store costs more in the long run. Joe Manzo and Dave Sugrue will be glad to show you how to do the job right the first time and save money, too! Come in to Middlesex Paint and Wallpaper before you start redecorating. You'll be very glad you did.

Both Dave and Joe have years of experience in painting and wallpapering. They know all the old tricks and most of the new ones. Of course there are always new tools and techniques coming out. Joe and Dave read up on them all. Knowing which tools to buy, which to borrow and what not to attempt at home can save you a lot of aggravation. Buying the right paint for the job will save you from doing an unnecessary second coat and make the first coat easier, too. You can pay less at a department store, but in the paint business, more than anywhere else, you get what you pay for. Gallon for gallon you're ahead when you start at Middlesex Paint & Wallpaper.

A new product they would like you to know about is Kyanize Melamine paint. It is specially formulated for kitchen & bathroom cabinets, counter tops, Formica®, shelving and furniture. It can SAVE you THOUSANDS. Don't reface or replace those kitchen cabinets before you talk to Dave or Joe. This new paint covers so thoroughly that you'll swear that you have new cabinets! For less than $100. you can buy all the paint and tools necessary to "reface" those cabinets like a professional. Or you can have that national chain do it and spend $4000 - $5000!

In the end when it's a quality job you're looking for, do it yourself, with a little help from your friends at Middlesex Paint & Wallpaper. You'll be proud of your work.

Deli King Restaurant, 885 Main St., (Rt 38) Tewksbury (508) 858-3855

There are two kinds of restaurants in this world. The big franchises and the good family owned and operated restaurants. Deli King of Tewksbury is one of the latter. Two families have been serving fine Greek, Jewish, American and Mid Eastern cuisine since 1988. Arthur Agganis and Dimitrios Gomatos ran another restaurant in Allston for 15 years before opening the Deli King in Tewksbury from scratch in 1988. They offer great food at modest prices for breakfast, lunch and dinner. It's family style dining at its best.

Deli King is well known in Tewksbury for the great variety of their food as well as the quality. Their seafood is a favorite! Many franchise restaurants have only a few items on their menu. Deli King has dozens and dozens ready for you now. Specials every day offer even better values.

Cocktails, beer and wine are available from the full bar for your enjoyment in the lounge or in the restaurant with your meal.

It takes more than a dozen people, mostly family members, to run the restaurant seven days a week. Hours are from 5:30 in the morning to 10 in the evening Monday through Saturday and 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays. They have over 200 seats available so reservations are never needed. So bring your family to meet their family and enjoy quality food at prices that will keep you coming back for seconds!

Take out is always available call (508) 858-3855 to have your order waiting for you.

Smiling behind the counter are Debbie, Dimitrios, Betty, Chris and Joe is the Total You*

PULLING YOUR HAIR OUT

By Linda Gaffey

Probably the first strategy that people employ when they discover gray hairs is to pull them out. Not only does this not prevent a new gray hair from taking its place, but it is a losing battle. A person has to either come to terms with her (or his) gray hair and accept it or choose to color it. The natural process of graying has its roots in reduced pigment production. As we age, the inevitability of decreased amounts of the haircoloring pigment called melanin means that hair begins to lose its color. When pigment production ceases altogether, the hair turns white. Pulling out gray hair will neither stop it from regrowing, nor will it lead to three more hairs coming in its place. These are but two myths that surround gray hairs. If you are unhappy with your gray hair you may want to consider coloring it, adding a rinse or having it frosted. Let's discuss the possibilities and options. Call us at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. Let us introduce you to our line of Matrix® hair care products. "Don't outlaw waves." For waves without curls, Vavoom® by Matrix®. We use and recommend Vavoom Shampoo® and Vavoom Conditioner®. HINT: The strongest determinant of when hair will begin to go gray is one's genes.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

by Edward H. Wilkens

FIRE VS EMBEZZLEMENT

QUESTION: Why is embezzlement such a financial hazard to most businesses? How much can an employee steal?

ANSWER: They can steal a lot. Fire and embezzlement run one and two as the cause of business disaster. The difference is that fire makes its presence known immediately and insurance is usually there to shore up the financial loss.

Embezzlement, on the other hand, is usually not discovered until after a substantial loss has been incurred. Yet, while it is rare when a business is not covered by fire insurance, all too few are protected by Fidelity Bonding which would cover inside theft.

EMBEZZLEMENT is the second major cause of business failure after fire.

Wilmington senior topics

Spirit of Boston filled

The Spirit of Boston social has been filled, a waiting list has been started. Remember as in past socials if you fail to notify us you are canceling and do not attend the social, you will be billed for the full cost of the trip. If you are ill and not up to calling us, have a family member call. We have a senior on the waiting list eager to fill the vacancy. Please be at the center by 9:30 a.m.

We have many new seniors joining in our programs at the center. For many this will be the first therapeutic social. The rules that have been adhered to for other bus trips will be followed for this one. For our new seniors and others they are:

When you arrive at the center, do not park your car in the area near the building, the hillside of the lot or the center of the lot. Park it along the fence in the back of the lot or behind the building. You may also use the Swain School parking lot. No cars can be parked on the street.

Enter the building when you arrive and remain inside the building until I call for the buses to be boarded. We will be having four buses backing into the parking lot. This is a very difficult task with such a small area. We do not want any seniors in their way while backing up. When you board, do not sit in the seat behind the driver that is left for the volunteer in charge of the bus. The volunteer will be responsible for your safety on the bus and getting on and off. Please follow his/her instructions. As you were told when you signed we will have to wait at least an hour for the bus to return for us.

If you take a walk while we wait you will have to be back at the pickup area by 3:30 p.m. When you board the buses at the center we will take the names of all seniors on each bus. This will alleviate the problem I had on our last bus trip, that was two seniors who did not tell me they would not be going back by bus, having the names of who the seniors are on the bus, I will know who is

Dog report

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following animals at the Central Animal Hospital in Stoneham:

- Female German shepherd, black and tan, picked up May 4 at 21 Lake St.

- Male white New Zealand rabbit picked up May 5 at 52 Washington St.

To claim a lost pet, or for adoption information, call 658-7845. For dog complaints, call the Wilmington police business line at 658-5071.

missing.

No senior should make other plans without telling me. We can have a very enjoyable day if we all follow the rules.

At the April meeting of the Commissioners of Elder Services it was voted to have the May Commissioners meeting in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center, 15 School St., at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday May 19. This change in time was also requested by the seniors. They felt the 4 p.m. time was a little too late. The Commissioners are trying very hard to comply with the wishes of the seniors.

It is up to the seniors, especially those who signed the partition to be present at the meetings now that their request has been granted.

Our June therapeutic social will be a dinner dance at the Knights of Columbus.

Wilmington seniors Week of May 11

WCTV apology

Wilmington Community Television would like to apologize for the coverage of the Wilmington Annual Town Meeting held Saturday, April 25, 1992. We experienced difficulties with a modulator approximately 30 minutes into the meeting. Continental Cable was able to properly diagnose and resolve the problem later in the broadcast.

WCTV has experienced an intermittent problem for the past two months which has created havoc while covering School Committee meetings. Since the problem was intermittent, it was extremely hard to properly diagnose.

We are currently taking steps to resolve this matter. WCTV feels confident that future live broadcasts will be without interruption.

The Annual Town Meeting will be aired in its entirety Saturday, May 9, 1992, beginning at 10:30 a.m. on Channel 30.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending May 5, Wilmington police officers responded to 25 alarms, one assault, six complaints of disorderly conduct, seven larcenies and one burglary.

Four arrests were made along with two protective custody detentions. Other departments were assisted on seven occasions, three domestic problems were quieted, three motor vehicles were reported stolen, one person was reported missing and medical assistance was rendered twice.

Seven non-criminal complaints were logged, six public services were completed, three threats were checked out, six traffic accidents were investigated, three traffic services were rendered, a trail bike complaint was taken, neighbors reported five incidents of suspicious activity and five cases of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Friday at 2:30 a.m., Officer Paul

Jepson drove to Bedford to arrest Steven A. Morris of Billerica on the basis of a Woburn Court warrant. Morris was bailed from the Wilmington lockup.

Early Saturday morning Officer John Bruce arrested Pauline Christianson of Billerica charging her with operating under the influence of liquor and failure to stop on signal. She was bailed for an appearance in Woburn District Court.

Monday afternoon Officer Begonis arrested Robert Hyder of Lawrence, charging him with operating a motor vehicle after his license had been revoked.

Wilmington detectives are still intensively investigating last week's abduction of a local teenager. Detectives are following up every lead that is given to them. The public is still encouraged to call the Wilmington Police Dept. with any possible information which could lead to the identification of the perpetrator.

• Conflict of interest

the board of selectmen and authority members appointing him to the board. Megan said he had been upfront with all concerned and informed them of his landlord status.

The board and Executive Director Ella Belmore sought advice from HUD in resolving the conflict. Two letters were sent to the board; the latest was received by the chairman on Monday. HUD officials offered two options to resolve the issue: allow either the Lawrence Housing Authority or EOCED to administer the Section Eight certificate. Siracusa said, since this was the first time the issue was being discussed in a meeting and he had had no time to reach HUD, he needed some time to clarify the most recent letter.

Belmore argued against delay. She said she had been in touch with the Lawrence authority and that agency will not administer the certificate. Dan Gillis explained the board backs a proposed bill before the legislature to allow housing authorities to administer certificates in their own towns. To take other action, he added, would set the board in opposition to the bill. Gillis also maintained the HUD letter doesn't authorize the housing authority to correct the situation.

In an April 20 letter to her board, Belmore "strongly" recommended that Megan resign. Otherwise, she said, "his votes will have to be considered not valid." Megan said Tuesday two options had been placed before the board and the only reason the issue was still up in the air was because nobody has moved to resolve it.

Pollution project

Students in Mrs. Rowe's second grade class at the Shawshoeen School prepared exhibits for an "environmental fair" last Friday. Vishal Patel and Pranav Vaidya worked together on an exhibit on global pollution, made from a simple rubber ball painted to look like the earth, with pollution litter glued to one half of the globe.

River

Matt Porter and Erik Nelson did a project on river pollution.

Dana drives this pitch

Tewksbury High School senior catcher Dana Boudreau (8) drives a Jim Medeiros pitch in last week's big game between the two Small School MVC baseball rivals. The Wildcats held on for an exciting 3-2 victory.

TMHS girls' track

TMHS track girls running for another title

With victories, great sportsmanship and team spirit, the Tewksbury High School girls track team has started the season in fine style. The girls have taken on some of the best track teams in Eastern Massachusetts and emerged victorious every time, and they have done it with outstanding performances by several superstars and with exciting improvements by some young, emerging talent.

Tewksbury opened the season on a cold, windswept day against Billerica and pulled out a 73-58 win.

The next meet against always tough Andover was a real "barn burner," but Tewksbury prevailed with a 71-60 triumph.

Over the April vacation the TMHS squad took another victory over Wilmington in a dual meet, and won an exciting contest over 16 teams at the Wilmington Invitational Meet.

To date, the most thrilling victory was the win last week over highly touted Haverhill. Tewksbury won 10 events to send the Hillies home with a 76-60 defeat.

Mary Brady and Lauren Andriolo have been the high point scorers in all of these meets. Mary has won the long jump and two running events in every meet, while Lauren has won the triple jump and at least one of the two hurdle races in every meet.

In the process, Mary has set a new record for TMHS in the 440 yard run (:59.1) and Lauren has broken her own triple jump record with a tremendous leap of 36'4 3/4."

Mary, Lauren and Caroline Kondoleon are the captains of this year's team, and they have pulled the team together and injected a tremendous amount of spirit into every practice and every meet.

One of the very appealing things about these young ladies, along with their fellow seniors Erica Feick, Amy Beauregard and Tammie Brooks, is that they have as much - if not more enthusiasm for track

Wilmington Little League

Upsets highlight opening week

The 1992 Wilmington Little League season opened last week, with last year's top three teams going down to defeat in their opening games.

Last year the Yankees, Tigers and Red Sox all tied for first place in the standings. This year each team was defeated in their respective openers. The Indians, the fourth place finisher a year ago, defeated the Red Sox, while the Twins defeated the Tigers and the Orioles defeated the Yankees.

Pre-season predictions have the Tigers, Yankees, and the White Sox as the favorites, but each team didn't fare well, losing their openers.

Orioles 5 Yankees 4

The Orioles won 5-4, coming from behind to score the winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Sean Kerrigan pitched an excellent game for the Orioles. Sean struck out 15 Yankees while giving up four hits and six base on balls.

The Yankees started strong in the top of the first with veteran players Tim Gillis, Scott Swiezynski, and George (Buddy) Phillips banging out hits. The big blow was Phillips' double that drove in two runs.

After the first inning the Yankees were only able to manage one more hit by DeAmato, as Kerrigan kept getting stronger as the game progressed.

The Orioles were held to three hits, but wildness and control problems hurt the Yankees.

Orioles' hitters were Warford, Bamberg and Kerrigan. Pitchers for the Yankees were Scott Swiezynski (three innings, four K's, five bb's, two runs, two hits) and Timmy Willis (three innings, six k's, seven bb's, three runs, one hit).

Aaron Cocomile made what appeared to be the game saving catch in the bottom of the fifth for the Yankees as the Orioles had the bases loaded and Kerrigan, the league's most feared hitter, at the plate.

Yankees 21 Indians 6

Sunday's makeup with the Indians, was played on an overcast day, and was delayed waiting for the Yankees' ninth player to arrive.

The overcast sky did nothing to effect the Yankee bats, as they pounded out 21 hits and 10 runs to defeat the Indians who earlier in the week knocked off the Red Sox.

All nine Yankee players managed to get at least one hit each, with Buddy Phillips getting four, Tim Gillis, Scott Swiezynski and Mark LeFave getting three each.

Dave DeAmato, Justin Vallas and Tommy Morgan each had two hits, while Rich Tabor and Josh Michaud each had one.

The Yankees' pitched Tim Gillis the first three innings (seven K's, eight bb's, five runs, two hits). Dave DeAmato made his season appearance with a fine two innings of pitching (three K's, one bb, two hits and no runs).

Rookie Josh Michael wrapped up the game by giving up one hit, one run, two K's and three bb's. The Indians started the game with Matt Roux, followed by Mulik and Ingram.

The Indian hitters were led by Chris McDonald, two hits, Dennis Ingram, Brian Orso and Mulik each had one hit.

The Indians were hurt by daring base running, as Buddy Phillips twice pegged out runners attempting to steal third.

White Sox 7 Orioles 0

P.J. Heffernan went the distance for the White Sox, shutting out the Orioles on one hit.

Matt Rutledge with two key hits and three RBI's led the Sox' attack. Heffernan, Kevin Considine, Mike Nolan and Jeff Riese also had important Sox' hits.

Jimmy O'Donnell got the lone Orioles' hit, and Pete Bamberg hurled two strong innings.

Yankees 11 A's 10

The Yankees knocked off the last undefeated team, the A's, which brought both teams to equal 3-1 records.

The Yankees jumped out to an early 8-1 lead after two innings by scoring seven runs in the bottom of the first as Dave DeAmato, Rich Tabor, Brian Herman, Justin Vallas and Scott Swiezynski each had RBI scoring hits.

Ryan Harrison pitched for the A's and settled down after the second inning, giving up only two more hits and two more runs.

Brian Herman, returning from vacation, played his first game and pitched six complete innings, allowing nine runs on five hits, 12 bb's and seven k's for the Yankees.

Brian also knocked in the winning run on a fielder's choice. Hitting for the A's was Peter Grasso a long double, Samathis, Sirigano, Brian Thresher and Derek Mazda each with a hit.

The Yankees had eight hits, two by Scott Swiezynski and Rich Tabor, with solo hits by Herman, Kacambaris, DeAmato and Vallas. Tim Gillis', batting leadoff, scored three runs for the Yankees.

After four games, the Yankees have faced four of the league's top pitchers in Kerrigan, Roux, DeCenso and Harrison and have averaged 11 runs and 10 hits per game.

Orioles 9 Red Sox 0

Craig McLaren led the way for the Orioles, pitching three strong innings. Peter Bamberg also pitched the fourth inning and looked good, pitching his first game this season. The Orioles' bats were led by Steve Valliere (two hits), McLaren (two hits), Adrian Mendoza and Joe Tusa.

For the Red Sox, Rich Marquis, Tommy Southmayd and Mike Carlson all pitched well. Mike Ginetti and Nick Lepore both had hits to lead the Red Sox.

Yankees 11 Twins 10

In a seesaw game, the Yankees scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth to beat the Twins, 11-10.

Rich Tabor led off the sixth with a double, followed by singles from Dave DeAmato and Justin Vallas. After two strikeouts and a walk to Matt Kacamburas, Aaron Cocomile doubled to right to knock in the winning run.

Both pitchers Scott Swiezynski and Damien DeCenso were plagued with wildness and a narrow strike zone.

The Yankees' batters banged out nine hits, while the Twins were held to three. Hitters for the Yankees were Tim Gillis, three hits, Justin Vallas, two, and George Phillips, Rich Tabor, Dave DeAmato and Aaron Cocomile each with one.

The Twins' hitters were Vin DiMuro, Covino and Coyne. Scott Swiezynski pitched all six innings for the Yankees, walking 11, striking out seven and allowing three hits.

Damien DeCenso pitched six for the Twins, walking 11, striking out 10 and allowing nine hits. Mike Hanrahan made a fine play at third to get the Yankees out of the second inning.

Senior League

Red Sox 6 A's 5

Jason Giangregorio had the hit which drove in Greg Peters for the game winning run.

For the Red Sox, Brian Farkas continues to wield a hot bat as Brian went one for two and his average is now a scorching .571. Greg Peters had a hit and stole three bases and scored two runs. Mike Wolley also added to the attack by collecting a basehit.

Giangregorio pitched for the Red Sox, striking out 11 hitters and allowing only four hits. Dylan Rogers and the Red Sox ace pitcher now than they did when they were starting out as freshmen.

Caroline has been a versatile competitor who has competed in many events from the 100 meters to the 880 and the hurdles. She has always been a hard worker in practice and she shows by example how important it is to fight for every point.

Amy has refined her technique in the javelin and the discus and has become the most accomplished thrower in two events in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Tammie over the three year period has moved from being a sprinter to a distance runner and she is now one of the top two mile runners in the conference.

These girls and the rest of the team demonstrated their talents and spirit most clearly in last week's meet with Haverhill.

Mary won the long jump by over two feet, and then went on to win the 100 and the 440 by large margins.

Lauren set her new triple jump record and then went on to win the 100 meter hurdles and the 300 meter hurdles against tough competition. Her running mate in both hurdle races was sophomore Elyce Botto, who has begun to make her mark in the conference.

Amy won the discus and the javelin with over 90' throws in each event.

The team got a big boost in the discus when Sara Waible, who has been working hard with coach Bill Piscione for several weeks, pulled out an all-important second place with her best throw of the season.

Anmari Kicza had a great day against Haverhill and demonstrated once again how versatile an athlete she is. First she won the high jump with a very respectable leap of 5 feet. Then, after taking second in the long jump, she surged ahead of Haverhill's best sprinter in the 200 meters and won with a very fine time of :27.8.

The Tewksbury distance runners upheld their honor against Haverhill by running tough and courageous races against several of the top distance runners in the state.

Heather Farrand took second in the two mile and freshman Jennifer Lavallo and sophomore Christine Hooper ran their best races of the season to finish ahead of Haverhill's second runner, with Jennifer getting third.

Tammie Brooks ran a solid 5:32 in the mile to get third place. In the 880, Kim Farrand ran the best race of her fine career, a 2:25.6, to finish right behind Haverhill's outstanding Katie Graham.

In that 880 sophomore Laura Cunningham ran a spectacular race to cut six seconds off her time and run a 2:35 and finish third.

The sprinters, led by Caroline Kondoleon, showed how they could scramble for points. Caroline squeezed out third place with a great 220 run.

Katie Bolton took third in the 100 meters with her best time of the season. Finally, the 4 x 100 relay team, grossly underestimated, took Haverhill right to the wire with a time of 54.9.

The team of Erica Feick, Caroline Kondoleon, Kerry Mathus and Katie Bolton executed perfect passes to cut almost two seconds off the relay time for this season.

Despite all of the victories over powerhouse teams, Tewksbury does not have the conference championship locked up yet.

This week they compete against Methuen, a team which is also undefeated and has, by most coaches' accounts, a very powerful lineup.

What might give Tewksbury the advantage however, is their experience and team spirit. They have been "up against it" before.

Done talking

Wilmington High School baseball coach Dick Scanlon heads back to the bench after discussing a tight situation with pitcher Jim Medeiros and catcher Kevin McArthur in last week's 3-2 MVC victory over Tewksbury.

Paul Bruno pitched well in relief. The Red Sox record is now 2-1.

For the A's, Eric Proton, John Lynch, Matt Holmes and Darren Bishop got a hit each as the A's kept the game close. Ryan Rappolli and Charlie Kacamburas both pitched very well, combining to strikeout five Red Sox batters.

Yankees 18 Blue Jays 6

This was a wild one with 15 runs scored in the first two innings and the Yankees scoring in every inning.

Yankee rookie pitcher Haubner went three innings, striking out four and giving up only one hit and three walks.

The Blue Jays sent starter Largent to the mound where he struck out five, walked seven and gave up five hits. Trimarchi relieved him, striking out six but allowing seven walks and eight hits.

Eight Yankees entered the hit column while everyone reached base. The offense came from Haubner, three singles, two RBI's, Potiti a single, double, two RBI's, MacDonald a single, two RBI's, Esher and Crowley two singles each, Cullen and Mitza a single and RBI each and Parker a single.

The Jays' bats were not quiet, as Pelletier, Jason and Stewart all had singles.

Yankees 7 Indians 1

The Yankees captured their third win of the young season with the pitching of Cliff Esher and aggressive base running. The Yankees' hurler struck out seven, walked one while giving up four hits.

Calandrello pitched for the Tribe, striking out six, allowing only three hits, but control problems early resulted in seven walks.

The Yankees' offense was spread throughout the squad, with singles from Wallace, Iannacchino and MacDonald. RBI's came off the bats of Potito, Iannacchino, MacDonald and Crowley.

Anderson's two singles, a single from White and an RBI triple from Fasulo's bat made up the Indians' attack.

Senior Softball

Phillies 15 Expos 8

The Phillies started off the game with great hitting by Darlene Scarfo and Sheila Walsh. They continued it into the second inning with hits by Melanie Johnson, Jen Fantigrossi and Nancy Pote.

Jen Mullins got the win for the Phillies with a superb pitching performance.

For the Expos, the hitting was led by Amy Omelia with two home runs followed by Jill Lojek, who went two for three with a homerun and a single.

Cubs 12 Blue Jays 4

The Cubs were led by fireballer Catherine Townsend's 15 strikeout pitching.

The offense was led by Kristen Thomas, Lauren Senesi, Christine Gilbert and Caroline Carvalho.

The Blue Jays were led by Cara Cheney with a hit and three RBI's. Jackie Eldridge, Leanne Bento and Katie Holloway supplied strong defensive support.

Eighth grade basketball

Wilmington hoop future bright

The Wilmington boys' eighth grade basketball team recently concluded a successful season.

Coached by Mike Caira and Jack Dennis, the boys compiled a regular season record of 15 wins and 11 losses and an outstanding post season tournament record of eight wins and two losses.

Team members include Keith Audette, Mike Caira, Brian Carroll, Brian D'Amelio, Gregg Dennis, Tim Devlin, Jeff Driscoll, Gregg LoGuidice, Doug Olender, Rob Parker, Ryan Rappoli and Jimmy Taveres.

The spirited and unselfish play of the team produced regular season victories over North Andover, Salem, Belmont, Woburn, Burlington, Billerica, Littleton, Bedford, Dracut, Danvers, Beverly, Haverhill and Plaistow, N.H.

One of the many highlights of the season was the sweep of the home and away series with Everett. Six of the team's 11 losses came at the hands of three very powerful teams from Lawrence, Stoneham and Lincoln.

Following the regular season, the boys played in tournaments in Woburn, Billerica, Sharon and North Andover. This "second season" saw the caliber of play turned up several notches.

In the Woburn Daily Times Tourney Wilmington defeated the host Woburn club by a score of 93-52. This victory earned the home town team the unenviable assignment of having to play a powerful squad from the Boston South End Boys Club, whose teams had won this tournament for the last three years.

Wilmington responded to the challenge with one of its finest games of the season by rallying from a 12 point deficit late in the game to win by a two point margin, 76-74.

In the championship final, a strong South Lawrence Boys Club, which had defeated Wilmington twice during the regular season, prevailed once again.

With the experience of one tournament behind them, the boys then moved on to the Shamrock Tournament in Billerica.

Convincing victories over North Andover and the host Billerica teams provided Wilmington with the championship trophy for its division.

Next in line for post season play was the Sharon Middle School Tournament a/k/a "The Never Ending Tourney."

Wilmington's victories over Winthrop and Salem (twice) set up a championship final game against Sharon.

In a hard fought overtime game, Wilmington was once again victorious, this time by a score of 78-74.

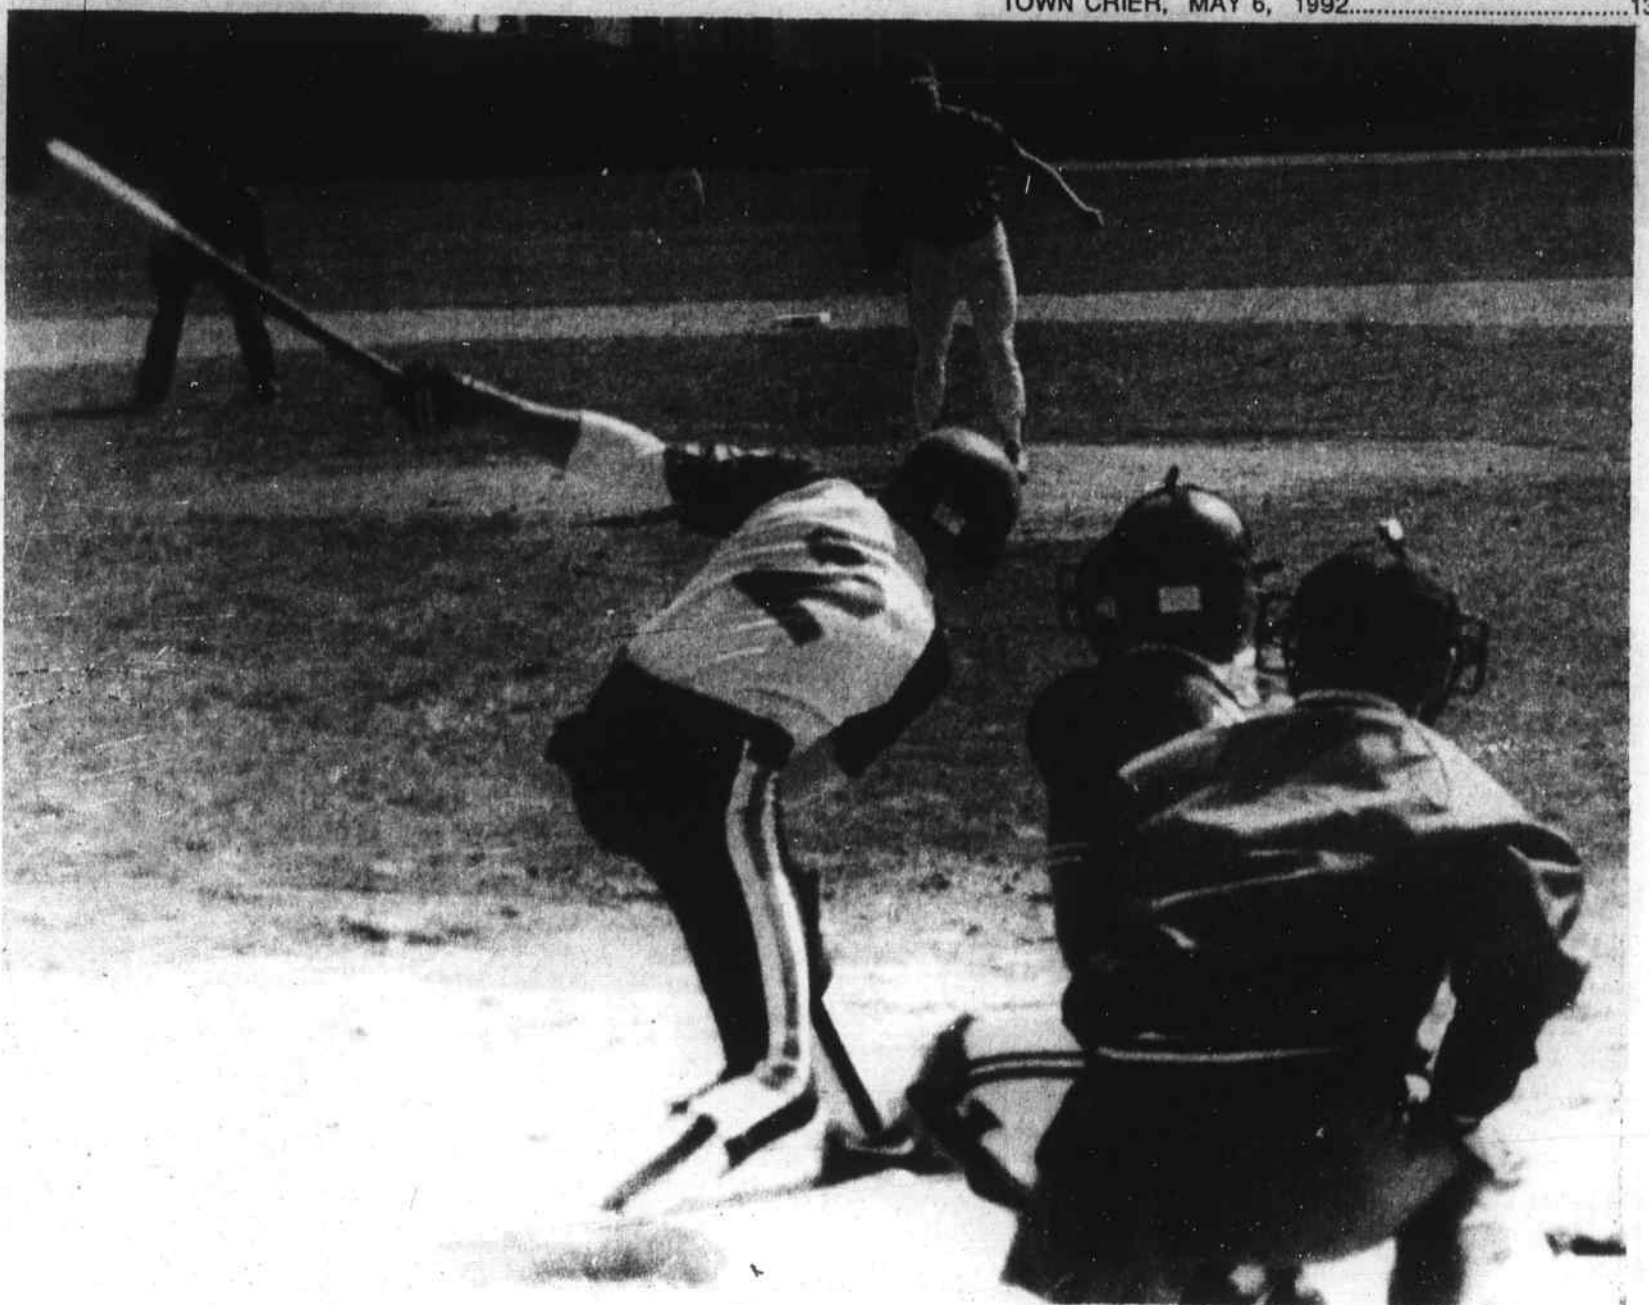

During the awards ceremony, four Wilmington players, Brian Carroll, Gregg Dennis, Doug Olender and Jimmy Taveres were selected to the All-Tournament Team. In addition, Doug Olender received the tournament's Most Valuable Player Award.

With two tournament championships and one second place finish to their credit, the Wilmington squad then moved on to Merrimack College for their final post season encounter.

Perhaps it was over confidence, perhaps, it was just the end of a long season and time to turn one's attention to baseball or soccer. Whatever the reason, the Wilmington team, in its' worst offensive showing of the season, lost its' opening game to Masconomet, 39-37.

Although disappointed with their final effort, this team has many reasons to be proud. From December to April they played a long and demanding schedule against many talented teams and proved to be extremely competitive. If the level of play exhibited by this group of youngsters is any example, the future of basketball in Wilmington looks very encouraging.

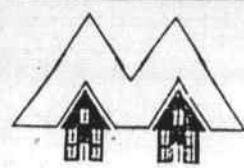

The players and their parents would like to take this opportunity to extend a sincere thank you to the coaches, Mike Caira and Jack Dennis for all of their efforts over the past three years.

Keeper of the Birthday Book turns another page

For many, many years you, the readers of Bits & Pieces, have been snitching on your friends and relatives as their birthdays have rolled around. The shoe is on the other foot this week. Although BeeDee did include her special day in the column, she failed to mention just how many that was. Let's just say, for BeeDee it's higher math.

Her turn to blow out the candles comes on Sunday. But please keep those snitches coming, she vows to continue for 20 more years.

Happy Birthday BeeDee!

Outdoor recycling benefits lawns

by Tanya Butler
Twenty percent of all garbage generated by Americans is yard waste. Local land fills and incinerators are phasing out or no longer accepting yard wastes. Many communities can no longer send leaves out with their household waste and soon, if not already, they will no longer be able to do likewise with their grass clippings. Therefore, people have some choices to make in modifying their gardening habits.

The easiest way of disposing of yard wastes would be to participate in a community leaf composting program if one exists and to leave grass clippings on the lawn after mowing. The alternative choice would be to compost all back yard wastes. Composting involves more effort but the reward is one's own source of rich soil to fertilize the garden and a sense of satisfaction.

Leaving grass clippings on the lawn after mowing it, is actually beneficial for lawns. Grass must be mowed more frequently so that not an overly amount of grass clippings are left on the lawn at one time. However, during hot, dry weather grass should be left longer to avoid scorching and sunburn (mowers should be adjusted up) and furthermore, slow acting fertilizers (that tend to be more natural than chemical), will result in slower rates of grass growth. There are special lawn mowers called mulching mowers available on the market that were designed specifically for leaving grass clippings on the law. However, if one mows accordingly, an ordinary mower works fine.

Eaters choice program at Health Center

Over half of adult Americans have high cholesterol and need to make a choice about their health and eating habits. Eater's Choice, offered by Winchester Hospital, is a sensible program which helps you learn how to lower cholesterol while eating well.

A registered dietician runs the six week program in which participants learn how to assess their intake of saturated fat and cholesterol, modify food recipes, interpret food labels, learn tips on dining out, and much more! Each participant will receive a cookbook and a participants' manual.

Eaters Choice is offered Thursdays from May 14 through June 18 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

For information and registration, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department (617) 756-2220.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg
Responding to the mail and telephone:

T.R. of Wilmington writes: "I have been thinking of starting a small herb garden this spring but don't know where to start. Are there any herbs you would consider idiot proof? My thumbs are not especially green."

No plants are entirely "idiot proof," although some are much more dependable than others. (I think of impatiens, for instance, when I am looking for a bedding flower requiring next to no special care). Herbs are usually grown for their beauty and fragrance and for their importance to the art of cooking. It is well worth finding a small place for them in any garden. A good representative selection might include three or four plants each of basil, borage, chives, fennel, mint, parsley, lemon verbena, rosemary, sorrel, tarragon, thyme, and sage. Borage, thyme and chives grow well in window boxes, if space is a problem in the garden. Herbs require at least five hours of direct sunlight and appreciate a spot relatively sheltered from wind and frost. Average well rained soil is fine, as herbs are light feeders. Check your garden supply center for young well started plants, or try your luck growing from seed.

M.S. of Tewksbury called recently to ask for a quick review of the wide row system of planting onion sets, discussed in this column last May. Rather than planting long thin lines of onion bulbets (sets) a foot apart in the garden, try this space saving method: by hand or trowel, make a six inch wide by two inch deep furrow. Then set the little bulbs (pointy ends up) randomly into this wide row, about one inch apart. This is close, but since you'll be harvesting baby onions in six to eight weeks - about the time the peas are maturing, it is not too close. Using this system you can plant a couple of hundred little onions in about three feet of row. This year I've seen 100 count mesh bags of sets in the nurseries for about a dollar. Harvested when the size of a half dollar and steamed for four minutes, they are a real taste treat.

L.R. of N. Tewksbury writes, "We live in a rural corner of North Tewksbury, and are planning to expand our salad garden this spring. We are concerned about opossums, whose numbers seem to be increasing in recent years. Are opossums a problem for gardeners and if so, how do you control the damage they do? We don't like to kill anything unless it's absolutely necessary."

Be thankful you are (apparently) not bothered by woodchucks! We see opossums occasionally in North

Wilmington, but I've never had problems with them in and around my garden. Like cardinals, titmice, and mockingbirds, opossums have expanded their range northward into New England due to the relatively mild winters of the last quarter century. If a 'possum should wander into your garden it will be looking for worms and insects, and not your young vegetable and flower plants. Should you eventually have the misfortune of finding woodchucks in your neighborhood, a sturdy three or four foot fence should keep them at bay.

From E.L. in Wilmington: "We love zucchini squash. Unfortunately the last two years little yellow and black bugs have destroyed the young plants in June. What to do?" No doubt the problem here is cucumber beetles, which love young squash and pumpkin plants as much as cucumber plants. Starting the last week of May and right through June, dust your plants lightly with powdered rotenone, an organic pesticide, every other day. Just a light dusting from a shaker canister will do it. The cucumber beetles, either striped or spotted, feed heavily early in the day and can shred an entire plant in a day or two if they go undetected. This is a short term problem; by the end of June this insect has disappeared. At that point we must concern ourselves with controlling squash borers, a subject we'll get to at the appropriate time.

Gardeners; don't forget to attend the Wilmington Garden Club's annual plant sale this Saturday, May 9 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the Fourth of July Headquarters! Lots of good stuff cheap, with apologies to Bldg. 19 1/2.

The basics of composting

by Tania Butler
The gardening season has begun. People are cleaning up left over leaves from last year and also beginning to buy fertilizer for their gardens. Spring is a perfect time to begin a compost pile for three reasons: 1) Composting is an ideal system for managing yard wastes, 2) composting produces a rich soil for the garden and 3) composting requires warm ambient temperatures to heat properly.

Composting is the process of organic material biodegrading and becoming a rich humusy soil. Anyone can make it. Depending upon the amount of effort that is put into it, usable compost can be made in two weeks, one to four months or six months to a year. The shortest time period requires the most effort. However, this yields a better quality compost that is higher in nutrients and more quickly available for use.

The process is simple. Select a location. The minimum size of a compost pile should ideally be four feet square on the bottom rising to four feet high in order for the pile to build up enough heat to efficiently break down the material. To keep the pile neat, some sort of containment method is desirable. Wire fencing around four stakes, snow fencing, concrete blocks stacked (without mortar so movable), a pit with a screen on top, wood pallets threaded together at the corners, wood frame and screen panels connected by hooks and eyes (so collapsible and portable) are all possibilities. There are also enclosed composting systems available to be purchased. The green cone and composting tumblers are two popular types. However, a simple, home made setup is all that is necessary.

Most yard waste consists of leaves, grass and cultivated plants. The most successful compost comes from mixing three parts carbon or dry materials (dry leaves, stems, sawdust, paper) to one part nitrogen or wet materials (any soft, green material such as fresh grass clippings, young weeds, discarded garden plants and kitchen wastes). If using weeds, roots and seeds should be discarded. It is always better to put on more nitrogen material than too little. The pile will not heat without enough. If using kitchen waste, only plant material should be used. Meat or fish scraps could attract flies and animals, would smell and do not decompose well. Corn cobs and grapefruit rinds do not break down well. A metal or stainless steel container near the odorless.

For composting to occur quickly, materials should be shredded (especially leaves which otherwise tend to mat together). This can be accomplished easily by running a lawn mower over dry leaves or by using a garden shredder. Other plant material should have their skins broken to allow decay organisms to enter them and so begin the composting process.

Rather than simply layering the materials which is a traditional way of composting, the materials should be thoroughly mixed together in the beginning. Frequent aeration is also necessary in quick composting. The pile should be turned every three days beginning on the second day if possible. Basically, the pile should be turned inside out each time it is aerated. The last element that a compost pile requires is moisture. Compost should glisten with moisture but not be soggy. If the weather is dry then watering the pile will be necessary. Conversely, a pile should be protected from heavy rains that could lower the pile's temperature, leach out its nutrients and force out the oxygen. In any case it is good practice to cover compost with plastic to control the moisture content of the compost.

A good mix should result in a fast rise in temperature to around 150 degrees F. in 24 hours. If the compost does not heat up quickly, then it is most likely short of nitrogen material or less probably, short of water. However, if the pile smells like ammonia, then the pile has too much nitrogen. The pile is finished and ready to be used when the temperature has peaked and then falls under 120 degrees F. and remains there even after turning it. The material will be dark and rich. Some things may still be recognizable if they were not shredded, but they should still be added to the soil. Mature compost should be used as soon as possible to derive the best benefits from it. Final composting processes continue to occur at this point and the benefits are utilized only when in the soil. The speed of compost depends entirely on whether the material mix is correct, the material is shredded and broken, correct moisture is maintained and whether it is aerated regularly. The effort put into the above four elements will respectively determine the quality of the compost and when a compost pile reaches maturity.

Street performing at Disney MGM Studio

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

For Reading's Paul Kiernan street theater was the answer to a dream of being able to combine the arts of acting, writing and directing into one ball of wax and get the instant gratification of an immediate response.

"I've got my hand in everything - directing, acting and writing. I'm trying to be as versatile as possible," the 27-year-old Reading High School, Class of 1982, graduate said.

The multi-talented Kiernan is realizing his dream by doing street theater at the Disney/MGM Studio in Kissimmee, Florida and night club comedy at the Disney owned clubs on Pleasure Island.

He described the set of the MGM show as being that of a Hollywood street scene in 1949.

"At first the people didn't know how to deal with us. Now it is a major attraction," Kiernan said.

During a recent trip back to Reading, Kiernan was busy negotiating a deal to have Boston's Action Theatre produce a show this summer in the Lyric Stage which he has written.

Although Kiernan had done quite a few high school productions, he still thought he would be going along with the gang. "The group I grew up with was of the get out of school, join a good company and make a lot of money, type.

"I found that money wasn't what I wanted. Theater is what I was looking for," Kiernan said.

Theater is what seems to be in store for the multi-talented Kiernan. After high school he took time off to make some money for college. That money was spent on a Bachelors Degree from Salem State, where he graduated in 1989 and a Masters in Fine Arts from Brandeis in 1991.

All during his higher education, Kiernan majored in theater with minors in creative writing and English composition.

It was during his college days at Salem State that Kiernan started to do theater a lot.

He and his brother, Kevin, had acted with the Quannapowitt Players doing children's theater in the summer. At Salem Kiernan said he was in about 25 different productions.

"A lot of it was put together on my own or helping people with their projects," Kiernan said.

Through this experience Kiernan said that he got to know what goes into a production and how to direct. As a result he started to travel with summer theater productions in Ohio, across the mid-west and eventually in upstate New York.

Kiernan found that the people he was working with had set their goals on making movies or getting a solid part in a long running soap opera.

However, Kiernan remembered the advice of an instructor at Salem State, Sally Russell, who said, "Define what success means to you."

Kiernan's answer to himself was "Success means to keep working."

Kiernan is undaunted by the fact that he wants to remain working in a profession that claims to have 40,000 unemployed colleagues on Broadway alone.

"Most of those people are untrained," he confidently stated.

Kiernan also has no thoughts about being an "overnight success." "Jon Voight worked for 10-years in regional theater before making Midnight Cowboy. There is no such thing as an overnight success."

This belief may come from the fact that for all his talent, Kiernan comes from good, middle class

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

WOBURN - Mayor John W. Rabbitt and co-chairpersons Joanne Mulkerin and Thomas Smith have announced that the 350th birthday celebration of the incorporation of Woburn has begun - and will continue until October 25th.

The celebration will include at least a dozen concerts, field days for children and families, athletic programs, school events, a band festival, a presentation by the Greater Bostonians, fireworks, games, a food festival, fishing derby, conservation programs, a historical poster contest, a Grand Ball, and a massive street parade.

LYNNFIELD - The Lynnfield Volunteer Playground Committee will name its creation, "Pioneer Park," once it finds a site which suits everyone in town. More much later.

WILMINGTON - Amid charges that the new bylaw covering the size and placement of political signs was "prejudicial" and "absurd," Wilmington Town Manager Michael Cairn has clarified it for the Selectmen.

According to Cairn in the Wilmington edition of the Town Crier, the main intent of the new law was to do away with unsightly vehicles which, in the past, had been used to hold political signs.

As the bylaw now stands, homeowners can have only one sign on their property although that sign can have the names of more than one candidate on it; all signs must be 25 feet from the roadway; stationary motor vehicles not used for transportation, such as trailers, can be used to hold signs but are subject to the same rules as lawn signs.

Of the 94 political signs, new Fincom member Steve Leet counted during an informal survey, 54 appeared to him not to be in compliance with the bylaw.

READING - The Reading Food Pantry could use the following items: cereal, crackers, canned fruit, soup, powdered milk, salad dressing, fruit juice, mayonnaise, canned meat - such as chicken, ham and tuna - diapers, jello, pudding, tissues, toilet paper, coffee, shampoo, detergent, soap, jelly, sugar (two pound bags), and beef stew.

When planning donations, donors are encouraged to think about what their own families like to eat.

Currently serving 15 to 20 families per week, the ecumenical pantry is located in the Old South United Methodist Church. For more information, contact Clergy Association Liaison Rev. Robert K. Sweet, Jr. at (617) 944-2636.

MALDEN - The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and Albanese Brothers, Inc. are working on the installation of a 48-inch water main along Eastern Avenue from Linden Square to Malden Square, an effort expected to take two years to complete.

Phase One of the project involves digging test pits, relocating local water and sewer lines, and the installation of the main from Maplewood Street to Linden Square.

MWRA officials anticipate traffic disruption and detours during the work.

It must be the pits.

STONEHAM - As part of an Eagle Scout service project, Reading scout Justin Nordstrom is conducting a collection of household goods for The Inn at Spot Pond in Stoneham, a family-oriented shelter for the homeless.

The following donations, in new and nearly new condition, would be greatly appreciated as would any monetary donations: blankets, pillows, twin and full sheets, towels, comforters, and household cleaners.

Although it's just past the date for donation pick-up, call Nordstrom at (617)944-1718 if you can donate.

NOT JUST SENIOR CENTER - Understanding Handicaps - Reading needs wheelchairs, crutches, walkers, canes, hearing aides, and prostheses - even if they're old. If you'd like to donate any of those items, please call Understanding Handicaps President Jeanne Selfridge at (617) 942-1273 or soon-to-be president Nancy Radville at (617) 944-1192.

"Building Your Child's Self Esteem"

All parents want their children to be healthy and happy. A child's self-esteem plays a major role in the achievement throughout his or her life.

A special lecture, "Building Your Child's Self-Esteem," will explore how parents and others can help foster positive self-esteem in their children. The lecture will be held on Thursday, May 14 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, Perkins Lecture Hall, 585 Lebanon Street in Melrose.

The lecture will discuss the importance of parental communication, understanding and empathy in helping a child develop positive self-esteem, communicate in a healthy way, gain independence and learn cooperation.

The lecture will provide valuable insight and tips about skills, such as listening, problem-solving and negotiating; encouraging a child's autonomy, and giving constructive feedback about both positive and negative behavior.

"Parents can learn that optimism, flexibility and a sense of humor, coupled with the knowledge and skills to promote their child's self-esteem, will contribute to the health and happiness of their child," says Reveno. MWH Maternal/Childbirth Coordinator Eileen Dern, R.N., C.P.C.E. will also be a featured speaker. Both have extensive experience in early childhood development and parenting issues.

The lecture will offer a question and answer period and allow for parents to share their parenting experiences.

Registration is required. There is a registration fee of $5 per family. To register, call Melrose-Wakefield Hospital at 979-3408 or 979-3508.

From S-1

stock in the persona of his parents Bea and John Kiernan.

According to Kiernan, "Acting is a job, like writing, directing or working at MacDonald's."

As far as a shot at the New York stage, Kiernan feels that is not the place for him at this time.

"A lot of people go there and get swallowed up," Kiernan said. "I still have a lot to learn and a lot to do."

Kiernan noted that he does not believe in starving for a living, and thinks that Chicago or more likely St. Paul, Minnesota would be the stop in his education train.

Los Angeles has also crossed his mind. However, a move to that mecca of movies would be as a writer or director.

The education process started during the summers while he was in college. During that period he started to work in the Sterling Renaissance Festival in Sterling, New York.

The experience was Kiernan's first with interactive, improvisational theater. The experience took a lot of work.

Kiernan recalled that for months ahead of time all the actors worked to learn dialects and develop characters.

"I got to learn to improvise and the importance of working with the audience," Kiernan said.

When he got back to college at Salem State, and to a regular production on a proscenium stage, Kiernan recalls noticing a large "gap between the actors and the stage."

Kiernan feels that gap shows the influence of television. It became Kiernan's goal to fill in that gap.

While learning how to do this, Kiernan stayed with the Renaissance Festival in the summers. By his fourth year he was the assistant artistic director.

As he entered graduate school at Brandeis, Kiernan knew that he needed to take the interactive feeling from the Festival and translate it to the conventional theater space.

Kiernan's first thoughts were to work with a mud show, much like the festival. However, as he studied the various aspects, Kiernan knew it would not work.

As an alternate route Kiernan started to work with the commedia del arte form of theater with actors improvising the story as they go along.

Kiernan joined up with a fellow Brandeis student, Karen White, and started the Armed Duck Players.

The group would go to local high schools and teach the commedia art form to the students.

"The concept is to break down the fourth wall and interact with the audience," Kiernan said.

However, he feels that the concept needs another step which would allow for more interaction without shocking the audience.

In one production, Kiernan and another actor would sit in the audience before the show and talk with the people coming to see it. The pair would act as if they were part of the audience and as the curtain rose they would leave and appear on stage using names and other information they had gleaned as improvised parts of the show.

According to Kiernan, "In the age of television it is important that human contact be brought back."

The production that Kiernan has developed for this summer is a series of 12 20-minute sketches strung together by musical acts.

He said that the Actors Action Theater was formed by four members of the Society of American Fight Directors who normally pose choreographed fights. The show they are looking for is comedy but not an excuse for fight scenes.

At present Kiernan's education process has taken him where he wants to be. "Everything new is a step forward."

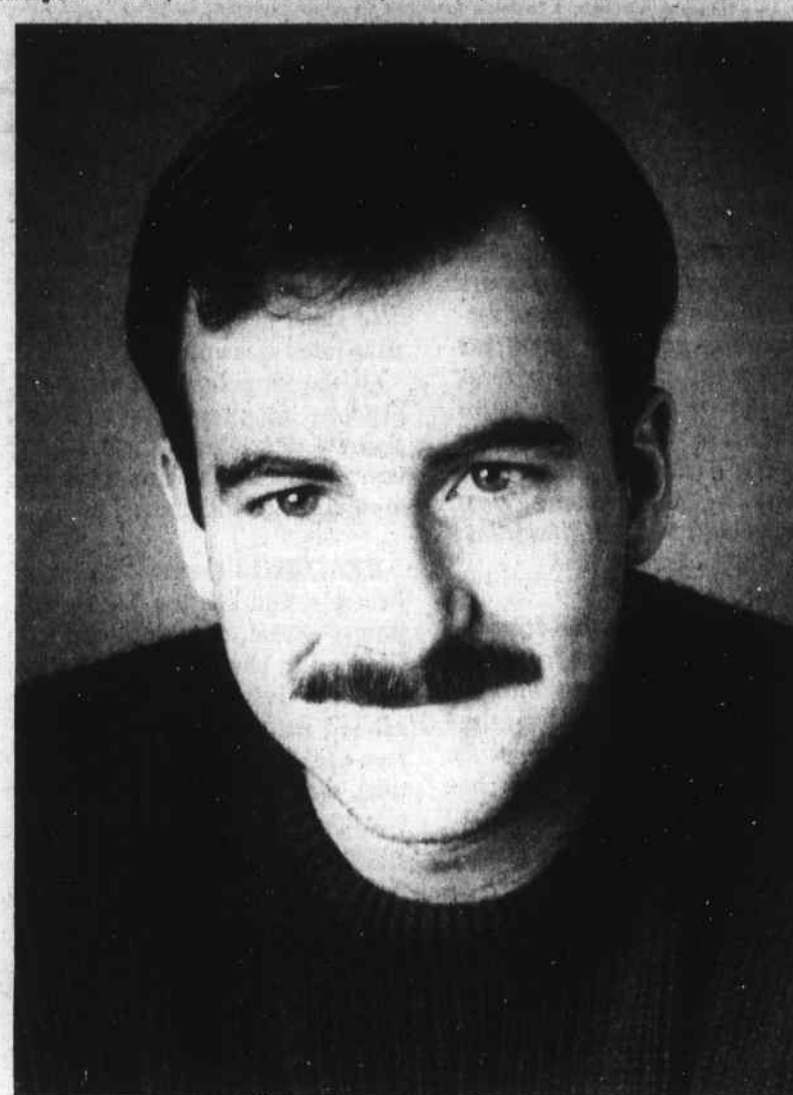

"Fortunately I haven't stepped back yet," Kiernan said.

He has a sense of security about where he is at the present time. "I feel safe enough in my work that if something doesn't work, I'm not going to disappear."

All of this is from a person who as a young lad, was described as so shy a teacher placed him in an elementary school production of Julius Caesar to bring him out of his shell.

According to Kiernan, trying to be funny is not the important part of his comedy. Why it is funny is what he looks for.

In this respect, Kiernan studies the greats such as Chaplin and Billy Wilder. In the future someone may be studying the technique of Paul Kiernan.

PAUL KIERNAN IS living his life's dream as he writes, directs and acts in street skits produced for the tourists at the Disney/MGM studios set in Kissimmee, Florida. The Reading native keeps active doing the theater and a night club comedy act at Disney's Pleasure Island nightclubs.

SKIN CANCER SCREENING OFFERED AT LAWRENCE

Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford will hold its Eighth Annual Skin Cancer Screening on Saturday, May 30 from 9 a.m. to noon. The screening, sponsored by the Lawrence and seven area dermatologists in cooperation with the American Academy of Dermatology and the American Cancer Society, helps fight skin cancer, the most prevalent form of cancer in the United States.

According to the American Academy of Dermatology, skin cancer affects more than 600,000 Americans every year, making it the most common form of cancer in our country. The most dangerous form of skin cancer, malignant melanoma, will kill more than 6,500 people this year.

"Fortunately, almost 100 percent of skin cancers, including malignant melanomas, are potentially curable if we catch them in their early stages," says Dr. White. Last year at the Lawrence's screening, dermatologist's examined nearly 200 men, women and children for skin cancer. More than 100 of those participants were referred to a dermatologist for further follow-up.

EARLY ECOLOGY OF NEW ENGLAND STUDIED

When the first European colonists arrived in seventeenth century New England, they encountered a human landscape as well as a natural one, one in which the native inhabitants carried on long-established patterns of interaction with their environment.

Author Dr. William Cronon explores these patterns and the fundamental reorganizations which occurred in the shift from Native American to European dominance of the region in his lecture, "Changes in the Land: Indians, Colonists and the Ecology of New England," derived from his book of the same title. Cronon will speak at the Peabody Museum of Salem on Thursday, May 14 at 8 p.m., as part of a lecture series complementing the museum's new special exhibit, "We Claim These Shores: Native Americans and the European Settlement of Massachusetts Bay," which opened April 16 and runs through January 15, 1993.

Reservations are suggested by May 10. Museum members pay $5, non-members $7, students with IDs $4. For information or reservations, call (508) 745-1876.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR SPRING TRAINING

A spring training program for Hospice volunteers will begin May 12, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the headquarters of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East, 12 Beacon Street, Stoneham. The seven session program will lead to graduation on June 30.

Men and women of the community who want to help families in crisis of terminal illness are urgently needed. Volunteers contribute greatly to the quality of life of both patient and family.

Presently there are not enough volunteers available for the requests of Hospice families. Visiting Nurse Hospice is an 11-year old program of the non-profit Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East.

Interested men and women should pre-register by contacting either Natalie Parsons, Helen McCormack or Sophia Chin at (617) 438-3700.

INSTITUTE TO ADDRESS AGING POPULATION

As America's population grows older, elder care issues have been brought to the forefront of the country's political, social welfare and health care agendas. The annual Boston University Summer Institute in Gerontology, which takes place May 19 through June 18, will offer workshops and academic courses that focus on an aging nation.

Specialists in different areas of gerontology will lead the one-day continuing education workshops. Workshop topics include: the dilemma of national health insurance; a neuropsychological assessment of dementia; "end-of-life" decisions; elder abuse; drugs and their misuse; elder care and the business sector; and healthy aging.

The Institute, now in its 15th year, fosters education, new therapeutic techniques, job skills and awareness of intergenerational issues through its workshops and courses. Scholarships are available for the continuing education workshops. For registration information, call the Boston University Gerontology Center at (617) 353-5045.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

In a heroic and generous attempt to deal with busing cutbacks, Wakefield teachers Laurence Crispo, Charles "Sandy" Collins and Robert Perry recently suggested an experimental one-year plan by which they would volunteer their time to supervise Galvin Junior High students whom parents must drop off at school as early as 7:15 a.m.

Crispo teaches social studies and special education; Collins, reading and math. Although Crispo has been a teacher in Wakefield since 1975, he could fall victim to proposed budget cuts.

Burlington's Adopt-A-Class program encourages employee groups within Burlington industries and businesses to develop ongoing relationships with definitive groups of youngsters within the Burlington school system - and through those relationships, to "build a money source for their education beyond high school through planned fundraising events."

Through the program, businesses commit to adopt a class throughout their time in the schools. For example, adoption of a first grade means a 12-year commitment to the youngsters involved.

Continental Cablevision became the first local business to adopt a class in January when it signed a pact with the Class of 1992.

And Lahey Clinic Director of Affairs Ralph Fuller has just come to an agreement with Burlington High freshman officers Tina Figenbaum, Stacey Harrison and Andrew Segel; class advisor Julia Brown, and Burlington Community Scholarship Foundation president Joan Miles which pairs Lahey with Burlington High's Class of '95.

Melrose High and Middle Schools recently hosted one of four regional Odyssey of the Mind competitions which involved about 70 teams from 17 Middlesex County communities.

The annual program is an international creative problem-solving competition aimed at fostering the development of creative thinking and problem solving in youngsters from six to 17 years. Founded in 1978 by teachers, the program has participants work in teams of their choice on one of six longterm problems, presenting their creative solutions in eight minutes while competing against teams in their age group from other schools.

Competitions this year included "hybrid relays," "Alice in Omerland," "delayed reaction," and "ornament."

Responding to early retirement incentives of $15,000 plus other benefits, Woburn's Joyce Middle School Principal Laurence P. Gilgun and Vice Principal Peter Varoutsos have announced their retirements.

Both have been in their present positions since the school opened in 1969, and held other positions in Woburn before that. Both are 61.

Woburn Superintendent of Schools Paul J. Andrews has already begun to explore the options created by the upcoming vacancies. Because of budget considerations, these options could include reassigning administrators from other schools to the positions or combining the city's Joyce and Kennedy Middle Schools, "a real possibility for the 1994 school year," according to the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle.

After 14 months of negotiation, in a four to one - which might have been four to two, or not - vote, the Reading School Committee has voted to ratify a contract agreement with the Reading Teachers Association, an agreement which expires on June 30, 1992.

The contract provides for zero salary increase, an increase in sick leave accumulation from 180 to 185 days, use of a limited number of sick leave days to care for illness of family and household members, a sick leave buyback program to take effect at the end of the 1993-94 school year, and the reduction of the teacher work year, this year, by two days.

Because of the balmy winter weather and the new contract, school will end in Reading on Friday, June 19th, this year, rather than June 25th as previously scheduled.

MOVIES

"Leaving Normal" Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"Leaving Normal" Starring Christine Lahti, Meg Tilly. Directed by Edward Zwick. Written by Edward Solomon. Produced by Lindsay Doran. Rated R.

Not only did "Thelma and Louise" open the door for female film and strong female characters, but it paved the way for road pics and buddy movies about women. Expecting more films about women doesn't mean we should expect them all to be well made.

And thus we have "Leaving Normal," a film that proves female road movies can be just as bad as their male counterparts. Meg Tilly and Christine Lahti play a couple of misfits so full of self hatred that you very quickly start to wonder when the entertainment begins.

Tilly plays Marianne, a two-time loser at the altar of love who runs out on her second husband with just the clothes on her back. She bumps into Darly (Christine Lahti), a recently fired cocktail waitress, at a bus stop in Normal, Wyoming. The two, forming a less-than-dynamic duo, head toward Alaska, where Darly owns land. As neither have made particularly sound choices with their lives, the two women decide to let fate direct their trip. Routes are chosen by drawing lots, or by letting a toad hop across a map.

One gets the feeling this is supposed to be a comedy, but how funny can a film be when the main characters are miserable and the plot is contrived? This is a strained story of two unhappy women desperately in search of a life. Yet the characters they meet along the way seem to have wandered over from the theater of the absurd. There is the sensitive truck driver who writes poetry and a cocktail waitress who speaks in stilted platitudes. Then there are the two native Alaskan teenage brothers, one who speaks English and one who can only communicate in his native tongue. Huh?

Tilly turns in her usual ditsy performance as the bruised and fragile young woman who runs on emotions but never trusts her instincts. Lahti is the one strong note in this otherwise flat film. As a woman with a past fast approaching her forties, Lahti lets us see through a crusty bravado to her frightened interior. It takes a strong actress to tell us one thing and show us another. Lahti is certainly accomplished, even if she never seems to have a decent vehicle to showcase her talents.

Chalk this one up as a big miss for Edward Zwick ("Glory") and screenwriter Edward Solomon, who seemed to think that shrill and said characters could make us believe in happy ever afters. You just can't expect to feel good from a movie in which the main characters loathe themselves as much as the audience does.

Howard's End weaves the emotional story of two Edwardian families, one unbending and proper, the other free spirited and open. The two families are joined through marriage, resulting in some surprising changes for all parties. The film belongs to Emma Thompson as a strong, intelligent woman who brings the families together and then keeps them going. Rated PG. ****

Year of the Comet is a mindless but good humored comedy starring Penelope Ann Miller as a wine dealer pursued all over Scotland by bad guys intent on stealing her million dollar bottle of vino. Tim Daly is the raffish American who helps Miller out while trying to woo her. File this under gentle escapism and don't expect too much. Rated PG **

The Babe tries to combine a feel-good flick with a dark and disturbed anti-hero. The result is nothing less than psychotic. John Goodman is merely disguised as the Bambino and never resurrects his spirit. Ruth was an unhappy and compulsive personality, yet the film focuses on his home runs. A gritty edge, not a glitzy patina, was desperately needed to recreate Ruth's grim biography. PG. **

The Players is director Robert Altman's ultimate skewering of Hollywood. Tim Robbins is a

paranoid studio exec who manages to get away with murder as he tries to hold onto his job. Wicked and dark and very funny, this flick both pays tribute and lambastes Hollywood and our preoccupation with actors-as-gods. More than 60 stars show up to make fun of their biz and provide glitter for this amazing, entertaining film. Rated R. ****

Stephen King's Sleepwalkers is a lurid, silly story about the last two survivors of a primal race of shapechangers - vampire like demons who prey on humans for sustenance. The story is woefully incomplete and the visuals are extremely chintzy. You stand a better chance of giggling than shuddering during this horror flick. Rated R. *

Delicatessen is set in futuristic France, where the lenthil people battle the meat eaters and no one is safe on the streets at night. A former clown takes on the ghoulish inhabitants of an apartment building when he learns exactly what, or who, is in the butcher's sausage. Very dark and quite strange, the film maintains its humor by keeping the gore off the screen and concentrating on the quirky people who managed to outlive civilization. *** Unrated.

Ferngully is a cute, if somewhat jumbled animated tale of the destruction of the Australian rain forest. Robin Williams and Tim Curry provide some great vocals, and this flick's heart is in the right place, but the plot combines a fairy tale with a real cautionary message that gets a little scrambled in the telling. Rated G. ** 1/2

Basic Instinct preys on our most gullible instincts to lure us into the theater. This movie may have some hot sex scenes, but the plot is ridiculous, all the women are treated as evil manipulative lunatics and the acting is nothing to brag about. An overacting Michael Douglas plays a screwed up cop who goes after Sharon Stone, a screwed up writer. If it hadn't been for all the hype, one suspects no one would have bothered with this lame flick. Rated R. * 1/2.

Thunderheart stars Val Kilmer as a federal agent called in to investigate a string of murders on a Native American reservation. Assisted by the charismatic Graham Greene, Kilmer discovers his spiritual roots as he uncovers festering corruption. The performances are top notch in this thriller, even if the plot is a bit predictable. Rated R. ***

White Men Can't Jump is by writer/director Ron Shelton, the guy who gave us "Bull Durham." No, this basketball flick is not quite in the same league, as it runs out of steam in the third quarter. But Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson are fab as two street court hustlers with lots of talent and mouths to match. There is much to laugh about and the basketball action is great, but the plot can't keep up with the actor's personalities. R. ***

My Cousin Vinny is uproarious escapism that retells that old story of clashing cultures. Joe Pesci is an untried lawyer from the Big Apple who visits the deep South to help his cousin, a college kid accused of murder. Flashy, loud-mouthed Pesci is sincerely trying to help the kid, and sincerely out of place. Stealing the show is Marisa Tomei as his street-smart, sexy, wisecracking girlfriend. Rated R. ***

**** excellent * poor
*** good x stay home
** fair

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Patricia Millward of Tewksbury sent me the following that I wish to share with you. It's a crisp winter day in San Francisco. A woman in a red Honda, Christmas presents piled in the back, drives up the Bay Bridge toll booth, "I'm paying for myself and for the next six cars behind me," she says with a smile, handing over seven commuter tickets. One after another, the next six drivers arrive at the tollbooth, dollars in hand, only to be told, "Some lady up ahead already paid for your fare." woman in the Honda, it turned out, had read something on an index card taped to a friend's refrigerator: "Practice random kindness and senseless acts of beauty." The phrase seemed to leap out at her, and she copied it down. Thank you Pat Millward, I appreciated it.

It reminds me of a woman neighbor who felt lonely, friendless and without a purpose in life.

A counselor told her, "Lock your door, walk across the railroad tracks and help some one in need. Then go back home and tell no one what you did."...Anais Nin said, "The only abnormality is the incapacity to love."

Folks, how many remember those comical Burma Shave roadside signs? Here are a few I liked -- "Does your husband misbehave - grunt and grumble and rave? Shoot the brute with Burma Shave."... "Listen birds, these signs cost money. So, roost awhile but don't get funny."...and "Passing school zone, take it slow. Let our little shaver grow."

A contractor sent a tear-jerking letter with a photograph of his little daughter to a man who owed him money for work he had done. He wrote under the picture, "This is the reason I must have the money!" The contractor received a letter by return mail with a picture of a voluptuous blonde bombshell in a bikini. A notation under the photo said, "This is the reason I can't pay you!"

Louise Powers sent her seven-year-old daughter Karen to the corner convenience store for a box of baby diapers. The check-out clerk said, "That will be $3.92 with tax." "You can keep the tax," Karen exclaimed, "My mother uses safety pins."...Mary Cox is 98 years young and a fan of Woodchips. I wonder if she is the oldest reader of this column.

Personality Winners: Warren and Donna Jackson and their beautiful daughter Lindsey, Author/Artist Nelda Rouillard, Scott Meninger, Bob Cordy, Janet O'Neill and Timothy McGilvray, all of North Reading; Rev. Richard H. Stowe, Muffie Taylor, Fire Captain Joseph Bowman (retired) and his lively wife Lorraine, Jack Donegan Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Police Chief Paul Romand and Julie McLaughlin, all of Lynnfield (Note: The Lynnfield Woodchips Fan Club meets every Saturday morning at Stella's Cafe Lynnfield, General Pottsie Geary President, Karol McLaughlin Secretary. Please join); Millie Ann Cavanaugh, Ashley Downs, Vickie Ellsworth, Paul Smith, Richard Pozzi Jr., and Nikki Sterling, all of Wilmington; Jimmy (the baker) and Patricia Millward, Holly Perrin, Don Purtell, Shannon Mountcastle and Ken Chandler, all of Tewksbury; Kristin Martinelle, Megan Kennedy, Jill Fiore, Kathryn Murphy and Les and Irene York, all of Reading; Jean Craigie, Jack Mahoney and his lovely wife Barbara, Lynne Tropeano, Kevin Pirani and Bee Russo, all of Stoneham; Robert Pilodoro, Andrew McCaul, Kareem Abuzahra, David Cosman and Devang Shah, all of Wakefield; Jessica Lanzo, Andrea McCaul and Julie Russo, Rose McCaul and Kris Oliver, all of Winchester; Metro Capt. Dan Gately and his lovely wife Brenda, Courtney Nelson, Ann Garvey, Coach Marie Scalesse, Lion's member Bob McKillop and Charles Gangi, all of Woburn.

Also, Jeffrey Caruso, Eric Feiz, Kevin Quinn, Steven Quinn, David Salibian and Mary Venezia, all of Burlington; Bob and Terri Ciccarelli, Melissa Hurley, William Iacopucci, Ellen Tonello and Maureen McGillicuddy, all of Medford; Victor Kennedy, Fred Cibelli, Georgette Bianchi, Tony Liberti and Joseph Piccariello, all of Malden; Al and Lu Serino, John and Christine Fanikos, Michael Gaffney, Janet Tenaglia and Richard Calaronni, all of Melrose; Stephen and Joanne Rappa, Robert Dion, Priscilla Ludwig and Robert Fawcett, all of Saugus.

A vacuum cleaner salesman rang Paul Rao's doorbell then said to him, "Good morning Sir. I'm selling vacuum cleaners and I know you need one." "How the heck do you know that?" Paul exclaimed. "Well," the salesman said, "The Woodchipper next door has been borrowing your vacuum for the last two years and he just told me that it's about time 'YOU' bought a new one!"

My friend, Robert Bonney, of Able Glass said, "Chipper, you can be sure that no one is as old as most of your jokes." Bob, people who live in glass houses shouldn't get "Stoned!"...George Gould has never been known to refuse to acknowledge an "It's on the house" call. Well, poor George went to the doctor because of pain in his hands, elbows and knees. "It's arthritis," the doctor said, "In your case it's because of getting 'stiff' in all the joints!"

My dear new readers from Medford, Malden and Melrose -- I have been writing Woodchips for the "Supplement" for eight years and there are no "Middle of the Roaders." You either like the humor in this column or you hate it. If you hate it, you can join my Aunt Nora who reads the column every week... The healing power of humor is a fact according to the medical profession. Humor heals the spirit and it heals the body so "Laugh and the worlds laughs with you, cry and you cry alone."

Kathy as a "magnetic personality." Everything she wears is "charged!"... I never realized how many people know me. I wanted to buy a new suit for Easter. I said to a salesman, "I would like to see something 'cheap' in a blue suit." "Certainly," he said with a smile, "try this one on then go and look in the mirror."

"M.E.'s for You"

Kathy loves seafood - every time she sees food she starts eating. Anyway we went out to dinner last night and ordered oyster stew. When the waiter brought the order he leaned over and said to me, "Sir, if you're lucky, you may find a 'pearl' in your oyster stew." Five minutes later I called the waiter over and said to him, "You know waiter, if Kathy and I are real lucky, we may find an 'oyster' in our Oyster Stew!"

My Dreamboat of the week is Debbie Wood of Saugus and my Super Star of the week is Tony Flaminia of Malden.

The Importance of Being Earnest is presented

Wakefield resident Rich Luhr took the stage May 1 when the Burlington Players opened the classic British comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest." Performances are May 7-10 and 14-16, Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 7 p.m. at the Park Playhouse, 1 Edgemere Avenue in Burlington. Tickets are $8 ($7.50 for seniors and students) and are available by calling (617) 229-2649.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" is a delicious comedy of manners by Oscar Wilde, one of England's true masters of wit. The mistaken identities, outrageous snobbery, juicy scandal and outright silliness that fill "Earnest" make it one of the world's all time favorite theatrical delights.

Spring Street resident Rich Luhr plays the ever-so-proper Lane, long-suffering butler to Algernon Montcreiff, a rich, self-centered and basically useless young man totally devoted to pleasure.

Luhr made his Park Playhouse premier playing a triple role in "The Boys Next Door." His performance as Simon Stimson, the drunken choirmaster in "Our Town" made him an audience favorite. Luhr's role as Lane earns a triple crown for creating three great characters.

"Earnest" also features JulieAnn Charest, Susan Sullivan, Michael Govang, Amie Strong, Rowena Conkling, Frank Kaplan, Benjamin Behar and Kendall Hodder. The show is directed by Alex Pirnie. Call (617) 229-2649 today and reserve your tickets for "The Importance of Being Earnest."

THE BURLINGTON PLAYERS rehearse for Oscar Wilde's deliciously witty comedy of manners, "The Importance of Being Earnest," which opened May 1 at the Park Playhouse, 1 Edgemere Avenue, Burlington. ## Shriners Circus starts Monday

From the moment the very first clown applied greasepaint, plopped on a red putty nose and took a pratfall to make a child laugh, children of all ages have been intrigued by the circus, and the intrigue will continue at Shriners Auditorium in Wilmington the week of May 11 through May 17 when the Shriners present their annual three-ring circus.

Top circus acts from around the world, Andre Serengetti's African lions and Trudy Stong's tigers, three rings of performing elephants, aerialists, high wire walkers, and of course clowns, will bring the thrill of the circus to children of all ages.

Shriner Bill Alboth of Manchester, Circus Chairman says: "For 15 years the Shriners of Aleppo Temple in Wilmington have been bringing exciting circus entertainment to thousands at our own auditorium in Wilmington." Alboth continues: "The Shriners circus is a full, three-ring production. Many of the performers have traveled with major circuses throughout the world. Not only can circus goers see a full-fledged circus, but our parking is plentiful and free. Because Shriners volunteer their time to handle the many tasks involved in bringing this family entertainment to Wilmington, we are able to keep our prices low. Where else can you see a circus for only $8 for adults and $4 for children?"

Dick Burgess, co-chairman of the event, adds: "We have scheduled five special school shows, Monday through Friday mornings, so that school groups can come to the circus as a field trip. For all its razzle and dazzle the circus world of animals, daredevils, acrobats and clowns is more than just 'show biz.' Circus performers open the eyes of children to the near outer limits of human strength and agility and the thrilling results of patience with, and love for animals. We believe that a field trip to the circus can be a worthwhile educational experience as well as great fun."

Show times are 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday with a matinee at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday at noon, and 5 p.m. Special school shows will be presented Monday through Friday, May 11 through May 15, at 10 a.m. The evening show on Tuesday, May 12, has been designated family night and all tickets for that show are half price.

On Saturday morning of circus week a special show will be presented at 9:30 a.m. for 4,000 exceptional and special needs children and adults who will be guests of the Shriners.

Shriners Auditorium is located at Exit 39 off Route 93. Tickets are $8 for adults and $4 for children under 13 and are available at the gate or in advance by mail. Telephone orders are accepted with MasterCard, Visa, American Express and Discover. Group rates are available. For information call (617) 665-6466 or (508) 657-4202.

Class offered on being a sibling

Adjusting to a new addition to the family can be difficult for everyone, especially an older child who may feel that a new baby means he or she is no longer important. Helping youngsters understand about a new baby is important to ensure family harmony.

To help youngsters age 2 1/2 to 10 years who will soon have a new brother or sister, a special program, "On Being a Sibling," will be held at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital on Tuesday, May 12. The program will be held from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. in the Perkins Lecture Hall, 585 Lebanon Street in Melrose.

Families are encouraged to attend together to learn more about helping youngsters adjust to a newborn in the home. The program provides helpful insights and tips on minimizing sibling rivalry, including how to talk to your child before and after the birth of a new baby.

Registration is required for "On Being a Sibling." To register or for more information, call the Childbirth Education Department at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, 979-3408 or 979-3515.
